Economists Predict Higher Factory Profits in 1946

Figures Are Submitted to Reconversion Advisory Board in Wage-Price Policy Study

By STERLING F. GREEN
WASHINGTON, Oct. 24 (AP)—Government economists forecast higher factory profits in 1946 than any war year, even if wage rates are increased to keep average hourly earnings at last April's wartime level.

The figures, which indicate 1946 profits of manufacturing corporations at $6,300,000,000 after payment of taxes, were submitted today to the reconversion advisory board to assist its study of a national wage-price policy.

They were prepared by economists of John W. Snyder's Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion, at the request of the advisory group headed by O. Max Gardner, former North Carolina governor.

Conferees with Truman
Members of the advisory board conferred with President Truman, after debating the wage-price question in a special session in the White House.

OWMR officials later said, "No action was reached and no position taken," by the advisory board, which is composed of public representatives and spokesmen for labor, management and agriculture.

The wage and price statistics offered for consideration were not officially made public, but it was learned that they indicated:

That the take-home pay of the average factory worker with one dependent in 1946 will have ten per cent less purchasing power than in January, 1941.

That the ability of management to pay higher wage rates in 1946 will be improved by certain measures to be taken, although some other cost factors which cannot be assured might alter this ability.

Increase for Offset
That, based on the measurable factors only, wage rate increases averaging about twenty-four per cent will be offset by the dropping of overtime payments, "up-graded" wages and the excess profits tax.

The latter estimate was carefully studied. The economists noted that it was impossible to gauge the effect on profits of the following systems connected with the switch-over to civilian goods:

The replacement of profitable civilian lines with lower-profit military goods; the necessity of making in green and inefficient makers; the low rate of output during the early stages of reconversion; and a decline in total volume of output in some industries.

Predict Higher Wages
On the other hand, the government economists forecast that large increases in productivity would occur which in many cases would permit payment of higher wages.

The OWMR reports emphasized that there were striking differences in costs and profits from industry to industry, so that averages would help only in formulating a national policy, not in solving the wage problem of any specific industry.

The same point was underscored by one official in the reconversion office. He said "a lot of misunderstanding has arisen because of reports naming some first amount of wage increase as feasible without a rise in prices. No one figure can apply across the board, he stated, because industries differ."

Unemployment Follows
The decline in earnings for the average worker during 1946 will be (Continued on Page 9, Col. 6)

Two Lieutenants Killed in Blast Of Flying Bombs

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24 (AP)—The story of how two young lieutenants were killed in the explosion of a secret "flying bomb" over England last year was released today by the Navy.

Victims of the accident were Lt. Joseph P. Kennedy, Jr., son of the former ambassador to England, and Lt. Wilford J. Willy, whose widow and three children live in Fort Worth, Tex.

Both men volunteered for the mission and both have been awarded the Navy Cross posthumously.

The accident occurred on Aug. 12, 1944, after the two pilots had taken off a four-engine PB4Y Liberator loaded with 21,170 pounds of high explosive. The men were to have flown the ship into two enemy "mother" planes that had achieved complete radio control over it. Then they were to have bailed out while the "mother" plane was guided by the "drone" to a V-2 rocket launching site in Normandy and crash-dived it on the target.

The drone was in flight and proceeding according to schedule when suddenly it was shattered by two explosions, the cause of which still has not been determined.

Although that flight did not achieve its objective and cost the lives of two officers, efforts were continued until pilotless aircraft were turned into an effective weapon.

IS EXECUTED

Vidkun Quisling Dies Traitor's Death in Norway

By NED NORDNESS

OSLO, Oct. 24 (AP)—Vidkun Quisling fell before the staccato burst of a firing squad in a secret execution early today and Norway calmly accepted the news as the end of the black chapter of her greatest traitor.

Quisling, blinking in the gloom of the execution courtyard, died at 2:40 a. m. (8:40 p. m. EST, Tuesday), but the people he sought to lead as puppet premier were not told until hours afterwards.

Then there were no demonstrations, just the quiet acceptance of the fact that the price had been paid for his treachery.

Quisling was led from his cell at Moellergaten 40 at 2 a. m. and whisked off to Askershus fortress, after his Russian-born wife's appeal had been rejected by the king and cabinet. He was led through a double row of armed guards to the highest wall of the fortress.

Shot Secretly
Bareheaded and in a pouring rain and lashing wind, the pallid, 58-year-old traitor faced his executioners—ten riflemen of the Norwegian military police, youths once forced to flee from the Quisling regime. A moment later the most hated man in Norway was dead.

The final act was so closely veiled in secrecy that tonight, some sixteen hours after the execution, Norway's newspapers could disclose no more than the bare official announcement.

Only four persons witnessed the execution besides the firing squad. They were Chief of Police Christian Welhaven and two doctors and one clergyman. Welhaven was in seclusion today and the other three witnesses remained anonymous.

Even the firing squad apparently was whisked to different parts of Norway.

The director of Askershus fortress knew nothing of the execution until he was told upon awakening this morning. Military officers in the fortress heard shots during the night, but did not know what was happening.

Not even Quisling's wife knew in advance that the judgment of the country's highest court was to be carried out. His family was told at 9 a. m. that he was dead.

Protested Innocence
The execution took place a few hours after King Haakon had spurned an appeal from Mrs. Quisling for a reprieve. Quisling to the last protested he was innocent.

A stiffly-phrased communique shortly before noon sketched the events immediately preceding the execution.

"Quisling sent a letter to the king declaring that he had been sentenced, though innocent," the communique stated. (Continued on Page 9, Col. 6)

British and Dutch Asked To Take U. S. Label off Lend-Lease Arms

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24 (AP)—The United States has asked the British and Dutch to take the American label off lend-lease arms they used to put down restive natives in Java and Indo-China, Secretary of State Byrnes disclosed today.

This country objects to use of lend-lease munitions in situations having political connotations, he told a news conference.

This policy of objection applies everywhere, he asserted. Venezuelan revolutionists used lend-lease equipment in their recent, successful uprising.

Byrnes virtually conceded there is little the United States can do about the political use of lend-lease arms, except to try to cover up their origin.

Marine General Opposes Merger Of Army and Navy

Vandegrift Asserts Competition among Forces Is Healthy

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24 (AP)—The fighting history of the marine corps was stacked up today against congressional proposals for merger of the armed forces under a single cabinet head.

Gen. A. Vandegrift, commander of the leathernecks, testified that consolidation of the War and Navy departments would cost the marines their best qualities, "esprit de corps and morale."

The marines leader, joining the opposition already expressed by navy spokesmen, presented the Senate military committee with a detailed account of marine amphibious operations and special techniques developed for the war.

"The best that proponents can say for this measure is that it might eventually save some money," the four-star general said. "The best I can say is that these savings, if ever realized will not seem great if we are forced to buy back our liberties with the flesh and blood of the next generation."

The bald, mild-appearing general argued that present competition among the several armed forces was healthy.

He said that as far back as 1921 the marines realized "we would inevitably engage in an oceanic war with Japan involving the seizure of heavily defended island bases."

As a result the marines developed a special amphibious tractor, special landing boats, and drilled with the navy on storming fortified islands. Vandegrift said the army showed little interest in these operations.

But when "men and methods were required to turn the tide of battle in the Pacific and set at rest the myth of enemy invincibility, the marine corps struck a first and well-timed blow," he said.

"I ask the proponents of this measure (merger) to remember that fifty dollars a month was not the consideration that led men to die in storming Iwo Jima, to crash over flames in Tokyo, or to lie forever in some nameless sea," the general said.

He asked retention of the present War and Navy cabinet places, permanent establishment of the wartime joint chiefs of staff, and legislation to correct any other weaknesses in national defense plans without junking the "war machine which has so recently gained for our nation the greatest victory in its history."

Acting Chairman Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo.) announced the committee would recess its daily hearings next week when additional military witnesses will be called. The War department has favored unification of the armed services.

Waterway Bill To Be Submitted Again to Congress

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24 (AP)—Backed by President Truman and reportedly by the board of army engineers, the long-planned, $66,000,000 Tennessee-Tombigbee waterway project was ready today for another round in Congress.

Congressional supporters of the waterway say the often-defeated project will be submitted to Congress again this session in an omnibus bill of river and harbor improvements.

Following a White House call, five leaders in the fight for the water passage said they were told by President Truman he is completely behind the project.

The President, they said, told them he favored the project as a senior and "was even more enthusiastic than we are." The five callers were Senators Hill (D-Ala.) (Continued on Page 9, Col. 5)

MacArthur Isolates Japan Diplomatically from World

Is One of Most Drastic Directives Yet Issued; Nipponese Must Recall All Diplomats

By MURLIN SPENCER

TOKYO, Thursday, Oct. 25 (AP)—Gen. MacArthur—acting "at the direction of the Allied powers"—isolated Japan diplomatically today in one of the most drastic directives yet issued by the supreme Allied commander.

The action followed recent criticism from Soviet Russia that MacArthur's policy toward Japan was too soft. Russia accompanied the criticism by a recommendation that a four-power council government replace the present MacArthur-dominated setup.

Most Transfer Property
MacArthur today ordered the Japanese government to transfer all its diplomatic and consular property and archives throughout the world to Allied powers and recall its diplomatic and consular representatives in neutral countries.

The supreme Allied commander ordered the cessation of all functions with foreign governments except for routine matters.

MacArthur took action at the direction of the Allied powers headquarters said.

The orders were relayed from the joint chiefs of staff in Washington who are in the best position to explain the purpose of the directive.

Food and a free press became primary problems today of those running a hungry and ill-informed Japan.

Japanese newspaper proprietors, slowly emerging from ten years of publishing government propaganda, were bluntly told by American occupation authorities to "establish a free and independent press, or make way for papers which will."

Col. Kenneth R. Dyke, chief of civil information and education, ordered the press to print more foreign news, explain objectives of occupation forces, and encourage free discussion of all issues including the sacrosanct position of the emperor.

Dyke criticized the press for not telling the people clearly enough that they could at last enjoy "freedom of speech." The press printed Gen. MacArthur's order granting the right. But its meaning was largely lost on a populace whose very thoughts have been subject to police surveillance.

Grain Is Surrendered
The newspaper Mainichi reported that an estimated 2,000,000 bushels of grain surrendered by the Imperial army and navy will be turned over by occupation authorities to the government. It will be distributed along with former Nipponese military clothing and other supplies to feed the hungry nation.

Welfare Minister Hitoshi Ashida scouted estimates that several million Japanese might die of starvation this winter.

Nevertheless, he said, the situation was so serious he was planning to negotiate with the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration for sufficient food to carry Nippon through November and December. The newly harvested rice crop should ease the situation after the first of the year.

The welfare ministry began production of prefabricated houses to quarter destitute jammed into 80,000 leaking tin shacks in Tokyo and Yokohama. Ashida predicted 40,000 would be erected by Christmas.

Plans to end rationing were drawn up and a survey showed that shoe production now is at a rate of about 20,000 pairs a month, only slightly less than before the war.

This compares with a rate of about 25,000 pairs at the end of September.

Meanwhile, there were prospects for an end of passenger rationing late in December. Government rubber officials said the program could end then if production meets schedules. They said truck tires might become ration free late next month.

Early Returns Show GM Workers Favor Going on Strike

DETROIT, Oct. 24 (AP)—First returns tonight showed that General Motors Corporation workers voted heavily in favor of a strike to support their demand for a thirty per cent wage increase.

The nation-wide election, taken among the corporation's more than 300,000 workers, was conducted by the National Labor Relations Board.

Hirshburt said, "The October 5 walkout was not for better working conditions or higher wages, but to bring pressure on the government through Trial Examiner Whittemore, found that the affiliate of the NLRB in the Kearny (N. J.) Western Electric plant was a company-dominated union."

Indonesians Are Now Determined To Have Freedom

By RALPH MORTON

BATAVIA, Java, Oct. 24 (AP)—President Soekarno of the "Indonesian Republic" declared today that "no power on earth" can stop the independence movement in the Dutch East Indies, and said he would invite committees from the United States Congress and British Commons to visit Indonesia to see "the true situation."

"The promise of an 'open door policy' as far as foreign investors are concerned," adding:

"We don't want to throw the Dutch into the sea. They can maintain their financial holdings here. These things can be arranged by a treaty with the Dutch."

Soekarno in an interview declared "every Indonesian understands why I collaborated with the Japanese. The Japanese tried to use the Indonesians for their own purposes and let us prepare for our independence under false promises. But we turned the tables on them. We prepared for the hour of liberty and then took the matter into our own hands. And no power on earth can take it from us."

Soekarno said he had spent the last two weeks in Western Java attempting to prevent his people from resorting to violence. He had "great difficulty," he added, trying to restrain "the extremist leaders."

A shot was fired outside the window during the interview. But Soekarno paid no attention for gunfire has been commonplace this last month.

Thirty Indonesians were killed yesterday in a new outbreak of fighting on the outskirts of Batavia. One Dutch officer was wounded before the irregulars fled, abandoning two machine guns.

Meanwhile, efforts to mediate the conflict were intensified. H. V. Van Mook, acting governor of the East Indies, sent three mediators, all Indonesians, to talk with Foreign Minister Soekarno of the "Indonesian Republic" and to try to arrange a meeting with the Soekarno cabinet.

The Dutch news agency Aneta said Med Denning, chief political advisor to Adm. Lord Louis Mountbatten, had met informally with Soekarno, his "vice president" Mohammed Hatta, and fifteen other leaders of the independence movement.

(A "Free Indonesian Radio" broadcast recorded in London said Soekarno had appealed to the United States to try to settle the conflict and that he would welcome Russian and Chinese participation in any discussions.)

Abandoned Child's Mother Is Jailed

BALTIMORE, Oct. 24 (AP)—Mrs. Josephine Wise, 21-year-old mother of the year-old baby who was hauled out of a half-filled trash-barrel last Friday, was committed to the city jail today after an arraignment before Police Magistrate George Weisheit to a charge of abandoning her child.

Little Albert Lee Wise, who was found by a soldier and taken to the city hospital, is home with his grandmother, Mrs. Josephine Norris. She told the magistrate she knew nothing about the situation until she saw Albert's picture in the paper Saturday.

The mother was arrested yesterday in front of a drug store where she had been sipping a soda. She was ordered held for grand jury action under $500 property bond, which she was unable to meet. Police who picked her up said she told them she had been sleeping in parks and cabins since her disappearance Friday.

The child's father, Pvt. William Wise, stationed at Camp McCoy, Wis., has not been notified of the events. Lt. C. O. Forrest of the detective bureau said.

Shoe Rationing Will End Soon

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24 (AP)—Official discussions of when to end shoe rationing narrowed tentatively today to a choice of October 28—next Sunday—or November 1.

It was learned, too, that the OPA will announce tomorrow a four-point cut in the ration cost of butter. The new rate of eight points a pound will go into effect Sunday.

A government official who asked that his name not be used said that OPA and the War Production Board expect to pick the date by tomorrow for ending shoe rationing.

The October 28 date is favored by those who want the program terminated over a weekend so that merchants can prepare for unrestricted buying. Those urging November 1 would like to have rationing end at the start of a calendar month.

Plans to end rationing were drawn up and a survey showed that shoe production now is at a rate of about 20,000 pairs a month, only slightly less than before the war.

This compares with a rate of about 25,000 pairs at the end of September.

Meanwhile, there were prospects for an end of passenger rationing late in December. Government rubber officials said the program could end then if production meets schedules. They said truck tires might become ration free late next month.

United Nations Comes Formally Into Existence

Twenty-ninth Ratification of Charter Is Received by State Department

By RALPH MORTON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24 (AP)—The United Nations came formally into existence today as it wrestled with the vital problems of preserving world peace and security in the atomic age.

At 4:45 p. m. E. S. T., Secretary of State Byrnes signed a protocol in the conference room adjoining his office which stated that the requirement for bringing the organization into being had been met.

The requirement, stated in the charter written at San Francisco last spring, was for twenty-nine of the fifty-one signatory nations to deposit at the State department their ratifications of the charter.

The United States took this action first on August 8 and Russia completed the required number shortly after 3 p. m. today.

Byrnes made a statement calling this a "memorable day for the peace-loving peoples of all nations" but adding that "the maintenance of peace depends not upon any document, but upon what is in the minds and hearts of men."

He said that the United Nations provides the organization which is necessary to fulfill the longings of "the peoples of this earth who yearn for peace," and he declared that the United States would do its utmost along with other members "to keep the peace and promote the well being of all peoples."

Former Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., the American representative on the United Nations preparatory commission, said in a statement that he was certain the American people "are prepared to give their full support to the United Nations to the end that our common aim of building a new and better world shall be obtained."

The first meeting of the assembly of the new organization is scheduled to be held in London in December. In addition to the assembly the charter provides for an eleven-member security council, for a social and economic council and for an affiliated international court of justice.

The assembly will be in many respects a forum in which the statesmen of all member nations may air their grievances and propose their solutions for world problems. The security council is designed as a more powerful agency with authority to take action to prevent or put down aggression.

Will Announce Agenda
Chief Justice Walter P. Stacy of the North Carolina Supreme Court, will be chairman of the conference, expected to last through November, and Dr. George W. Taylor, former chairman of the War Labor Board, will be secretary.

President Truman is expected to announce the agenda tomorrow, and to make a statement to accompany it. Messages also are expected from the labor and industry leaders who have been planning the meeting for two months.

The committee, proposing a seven-point program for discussion as a starter, said there was "no thought of limiting the conference to those seven topics."

It suggested that such subjects as full employment, wages and hours and legislation—which might be vital to industrial peace—could properly be brought before the conference.

The committee also proposed that possibly there should be discussion of whether vital public utilities should be placed in a class by themselves and treated separately from ordinary business enterprises in setting up dispute machinery.

Seven Points Recommended
The seven points recommended by the committee for discussion looked toward minimizing industrial disputes are:

1. By collective bargaining.
2. Recognition of inherent rights of labor and of management.
3. Utilization by management of the collective bargaining provisions (Continued on Page 9, Col. 3)

Price Ceiling on Existing Houses Urged by OPA Chief Bowles

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24 (AP)—Price Administrator Chester Bowles proposed today that Congress set a price ceiling on existing houses amounting to the sum brought in the first sale after enactment of the law.

This would prevent speculative buying and reselling of such homes and curb a dangerous price boom, Bowles told a Senate Small Business subcommittee.

He ran into immediate objections from Chairman Stewart (D-Tenn.) and Senator Wherry (R-Nebr.). Wherry, especially, said it would be administratively impossible to check on every house sale.

Stewart observed it would be unfair to a man who bought a house, improved it and then could get no higher price to cover the cost of improvement.

Bowles said provision would have to be made for adjustments in cases of improvements. But Wherry argued it would take an army of government agents to rule on every case. He also suggested a chance of side-payments which he said were "flagrant in the case of used automobile ceilings."

In the case of new homes, Bowles suggested a price to cover costs of

Measure Carries Reductions Totalling $5,350,000,000

Approved by Voice Vote after Day's Debate; Changes, Offered by Republicans, Made

By FRANCIS J. KELLY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24 (AP)—The Senate voted tonight to reduce taxes $5,788,000,000 next year, accepting two last-minute changes which added $155,000,000 to previously approved cuts.

The bill, approved by a voice vote after a single day's debate, goes back to the House, which in all probability will send it to a Senate-House conference committee for adjustment of differences between the two chambers. The House bill, passed two weeks ago, carries reductions totaling $5,350,000,000. Conferees expect to hold their first session Friday.

The bill which emerged from the Senate proposes the following reductions:

Individual income taxes, $2,644,000,000.

Corporation taxes, $2,934,000,000.

Repeal of use tax on automobiles and boats, $140,000,000.

Repeal of 1941 excise taxes on sporting goods, stoves, electrical appliances, business machines, and photographic apparatus, $700,000,000.

"Henderson Levies" Cited
The miscellaneous excise tax items were incorporated in one of the last-minute changes. Senator Taft (R-Ohio) called them "Leon Henderson levies" and explained that they were put on in the early days of the war emergency, not as revenue producers but as deterrents to the use of strategic materials. Unless the House insists on reducing all wartime excise levies, repeal of the "Henderson taxes" will not be pressed by the Senate conferees.

Another Republican, Vandenberg of Michigan, added the other floor amendment. It would give small corporations limited relief from the excess profits tax on their 1945 income by providing that the combination of credits and exemption against the tax shall not be less than $200. It does not affect large corporations which already have more than $25,000 in credits and exemptions.

Changes recommended by the Senate Finance committee in the tax bill passed by the House were agreed to without debate, as rapidly as the reading clerk could drone them off.

Other Reductions Asked
After adoption of the committee amendments, but before acceptance of the Taft and Vandenberg proposals, the bill called for the following reductions:

$2,644,000,000 for individuals, by three changes: (a) putting the three per cent tax on the same exemption basis as the graduated surtax levy; (b) trimming three percentage points off each bracket of the surtax; and (c) providing a five per cent reduction in the tax as figured under the first two steps.

$2,934,000,000 for corporations, through repeal of the excess profits tax, the capital stock tax and the (Continued on Page 9, Col. 3)

French Political Leaders Arrange Party Parleys

By WILLIAM FRYE

PARIS, Oct. 24 (AP)—Political leaders called party conferences today to study results of Sunday's elections and to seek advantage in preparation for the first new assembly meeting twelve days hence.

Final tabulation of the votes in metropolitan France, Corsica and Algiers gave the Communists 152, the M. R. P. (Popular Republican Movement) 138 and the Socialists 151 in the 586-seat assembly.

For the first time in France's recent history, three parties of virtually equal strength dominated the assembly. If any two of them joined forces, they would have—if not a working majority—at least a clear cut control.

What may have been the opening move toward such a coalition appeared this morning in veteran Socialist Leon Blum's editorial in the official Socialist paper "Le Populaire." Blum wrote:

"The parliamentary and governmental problem in the new constituent assembly is before all else—is even exclusively—the problem of a program (the National Resistance Council's Reform program)."

"x x x An accord with the MRP on the characteristics of this program is possible, one might even say it is virtually accomplished."

The program is one of nationalizing basic industries, natural resources, banks and insurance companies, of promoting producers' and consumers' co-operatives for the purpose of "subordinating vested interests to the general interest."

New Cars Must Be Sold Under OPA Ration

New 1945-46 automobiles continue to be subject to rationing restrictions despite the idea prevalent among some few members of the automobile trade that these cars are not controlled by OPA regulations, according to local OPA officials.

The regulation provides for the rationing of every passenger automobile imported or manufactured on or after July 1, 1945, which has not been registered for use. The amendment to the regulations effective last July removed new 1942 cars from rationing, it was added.

The price division of the state OPA office states that the regulation MPR 594 covering maximum prices for new cars, have been forwarded to all authorized dealers in Maryland.

One of the regulations states that the seller of a new car is required to sign a certificate of new passenger automobile, form 6085-2559 and turn the original in to the local War Price and Rationing Board. Copies of this form have not yet been received at the local office but are expected in soon, it was stated.

The seller at retail is also required to post in a conspicuous place on his premises a notice containing an adequate description of each of the new automobiles he has for sale and a detailed breakdown of the maximum price for each of these automobiles.

In addition to the certificate of transfer a dealer is also required to keep shop records showing both repairs and replacements he makes to trade-ins and the charges at retail for such repairs and replacements. The information on the certificate of transfer and in the shop records will disclose whether the reseller has allowed reasonable value for trade-ins, the local ration office explained.

With new cars expected to arrive in small quantities by the latter part of the year and with production being stepped up considerably next year, new car business will be greatly increased and the importance of the OPA regulations will be stressed as long as price control is continued.

Husband Absorbed In Business Did Not Notice Wife

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love & Marriage

"You're twelve pounds over weight," consoled the woman who had a double chin of her own, as she scrutinized the scales in the Second-Blooming-Beauty-Parlor. The "little woman" stepping off the scales, looked as if she had been sentenced to life imprisonment. She'd been thinking all along there was something concealed in Bob's manner, the way he wolfed the headlines of the paper at breakfast—the way he dashed to the office forgetting to kiss her goodbye two or three times—the way his thoughts seemed to wander when she chattered along about household affairs at dinner. Today she'd found the reason for all this—she was twelve pounds overweight!

She Began To Diet
They'd been married ten years. The boy was eight, the girl six, Bob doing extremely well; everyone regarded them as an ideal couple, but they hadn't observed, as his wife had, that Bob seemed absorbed in something outside the home. The "little woman" began to diet, and she did it with the thoroughness that she did her spring house cleaning. Her breakfast was black coffee and a piece of fruit. Lunch on wasn't worth mentioning; dinner was grim. With a set smile she could see Bob and the children eat potatoes, rice and gravy, and on Sundays stuffed chicken and pie while she picked about like the proverbial bird.

Her martyrdom achieved results. Her plump cheeks fell in, eyes had a hollow look, a fine network of wrinkles appeared. She didn't look pretty, but she was losing! Losing! going, according to her bathroom scales. He mother and sisters cautioned her. Wasn't she carrying starvation too far? Everyone but Bob seemed to notice she'd begun to look like a ghost.

Then one evening he came bounding in from the office with bustle and enthusiasm he hadn't shown in years. "Congratulations," said "everything's all set . . . and the 'little woman' almost ready. He was going to tell her, she was sure, that it had come at last; he'd have to go to Reno to get divorced and he would agree to a liberal settlement.

"What is it?" she gasped.
Go Out to Celebrate
I've been made a junior partner, and I've been so busy I haven't bought a thing but that step-up. Now we can build our house . . . oh, what's the matter with you? You look like a ghost. What's happened?" (For the first time he tried to notice.)

Then the "little woman" took refuge in a burst of tears (she was at kind) and sobbed out the whole story that she didn't think he loved her any more, and had begun diet-

If you don't quit, I won't love any more. You look, you look, never mind now—put on your hat, let's go out and celebrate."

Sensible Thoughts By a Congressman

SPEAKING last evening at the recognition banquet given at Frederick by its junior chamber of commerce, Representative J. Glenn Beall declared that the capacity for intelligent co-operation to achieve what has been America's success as a free country and which was chiefly responsible for winning the war, is what can bring us safely through the difficult postwar transition period.

The event was staged to show appreciation to all those who took part on the home front in winning the war, including members of the state guard, the various civilian war agencies, the Red Cross, the USO, the Women's Volunteer Service, the Y. M. C. A., the Boy and Girl Scouts, the various veterans organizations and others. The volume of volunteer service thus performed on the home front was, as Beall said, actually tremendous, reflecting splendidly a spirit of common duty in time of common need.

The transition will not be an easy task, as Beall said, especially with regard to the readjustment of the war veterans to civilian life, but he wisely cautioned against the notion so unfortunately prevailing in many quarters that the job is chiefly for the government. Here the congressman touched something to which more serious attention should be given by all.

After stressing the need for continuing to give the returning servicemen the same attention given in wartime, Beall declared that this is applicable to every one of us. "Some of the particular tasks for which we volunteered in wartime have been completed," he said. "Others have not. The fighting is over, but the difficult problems of daily life created by the war years are not over. Our nation is greatly disorganized, with vast areas of unemployment, with enormous and new problems at home and abroad. The peace has not been made, although the fighting is at an end. We have won the war, have bought the victory with blood and tears, with sacrifice and debt. It is not yet paid for, and it is not yet organized."

"Into the months ahead, we will all do well to take the same spirit of service which we honor here tonight. We will do well to stick together pretty closely as good Americans, good citizens and good neighbors. We have learned how much we can accomplish by working honestly and earnestly together, and we will find it profitable to keep on working that way. We won the war, our sons and brothers on the battlefield, the rest of us on the home front. We had better keep together for the winning of the peace. Nobody else is going to do it for us."

"Our government is not going to do everything, sometimes it is not going to do it at all. I have a good deal of respect for our late president, although I was not of his political party, but I never quite agreed with his tendency to say to the American people that 'your government' will do this or that for you. I do not believe our government can or should do everything. We are citizens of a free, representative republic, and our government is not a bit better than we are. Hence, if we think that our government is going to make some kind of magic and solve all the problems of life for us, we are simply kidding ourselves."

"Most of the activities which we meet here tonight to appreciate and honor were not acts of government. They were sensible, necessary duties which we did together as sensible men and women, and did for ourselves. That capacity for intelligent co-operation to achievement is what has made America successful as a free country."

"We sometimes forget that the big things in this world are made up of a good many little things. Our civilian duties in wartime may have probably reminded us that this is true. It might be a small thing for one woman to do more housework than she was doing, or to go to the Red Cross and roll bandages. A million women doing that made all the surgical dressings for a great army. One tired man stopping after a hard day of work to give a pint of blood at a blood bank was not a big thing. Millions doing that saved thousands of lives on far-flung battlefields."

These thoughts, so clearly and well expressed by the Sixth district representative, are to the mind of this newspaper well worth heeding at this time by all of the folks who have constituted the mighty army of the home front. They represent a sound philosophy. Surely what we have done through co-operative effort in the winning of a great war we can do in winning the peace at home and abroad—Americans have the capacity and the will to do so, and the quicker we co-operate therein the sooner we will be living again in contentment and prosperity.

Halloween and The Pranksters
HALLOWEEN will be with us this coming Wednesday evening. It is the vigil of all Saints day, observed as a festival by young people in many countries with traditional charms and rites. In the old Celtic calendar, this was 'Witches' night' and superstitious country folk still hold that spirits walk abroad on this one evening.

Be that as it may—and there will be at least a pretty good attempt at simulation thereof—a bit of preparation is now in order in view of the fact that too many youngsters moved by the ebullience of their age, can't wait for the formal observance but must get in a few tricks ahead of time. It would be well to pick up the porch rugs and the like, and put them in places of security until the celebration and its inevitable aftermath of a night or two passes.

Some sensible advice is in order for the pranksters and their parents. The former should refrain from vandalism and other malicious mischief that will result in loss or destruction of property; the latter should take it upon themselves to instill a respect for property rights in the minds of their charges.
Especially should the pranksters be warned against inflicting damage to utility property of any kind at any place. Such damage can result in serious injury, even death, to travelers and other utility users.

The police chief of Scottsdale, Pa., has set an example authorities in other municipalities might well emulate in curbing over-enthusiastic, thoughtless celebrants of the Halloween season. Young culprits were required to pay for untoward pranks in a unique way. They threw ripened tomatoes upon porches and against walls and windows of buildings. The chief, having identified and apprehended them, required them to clean up the mess to the immense satisfaction of the house owners.
That is an ideal punishment for minor infractions, but when they become more serious and damage to property results, the perpetrators should be made to reimburse the owners. Failing in that, court punishments would be in order.

The Real Savings Are Yet to Come

IT HAS AN IMPRESSIVE sound to say that the House of Representatives has cut federal expenditures by $52,000,000 for the present fiscal year, but the action has no broad significance. All that the House has done by this unanimous vote is to recall authorization for money which would have been spent if the war had continued but which now is no longer required.

Thus there is no special occasion for joyous shouting on the part of taxpayers or for entertaining the House. When victory was achieved over the last of the nation's enemies the necessity ceased to exist for the building of warships, the manufacture of planes, arms and munitions, and for the maintenance of enormous forces in the field. To have major tax reductions can be made.

That is the task to which Congress should devote itself as soon as the debris of unused war appropriations has been cleared away.
While everybody will have to admit that smoke abatement, now wisely revived here, is a good thing, it is a dead-end fact that any householder or community will add her emphasis to it as a real local necessity.

As between the Halloween prank of soaping automobile windows and letting the air out of all the tires, isn't hard to make a choice. But the heck of it is that the owner doesn't have the privilege of choosing.
Railroad passengers who are now able to obtain an improved meal in the dining cars without waiting anxiously and hungrily in line for it say the new experience is really something.

A machine has been invented which dispels fog, but installations in the nation's capital will await invention of a machine to eliminate red tape.
The earth's surface is alleged to have been solid for 3,000,000 years, which will explain a matter which has concerned Victory gardeners during recent summers.

DON'T
By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS
On general principles I abhor don'ts. But there are a few that come in very well in our daily lives. None of them is original with me. I merely list a few that have helped me to live a better part.

Don't whine. It does no good, anyway, besides it sours the one who makes it a practice. No one ever loved a whiner.
Don't regret the past. It will never come back. It never has. Spilled milk is spilled. Either milk that which is spilled—or hunt up another cow. It often takes a dozen failures to make one success.

Don't advertise your aches and pains. Most of us have them at times. They are the common heritage of mankind. But no one else likes to hear about them. Tell people about the things that make you happy.
Don't borrow money. Don't borrow trouble. By borrowing money you are almost sure to lose a friend—and your self-respect as well. By borrowing trouble you obligate yourself to pay it back—and who wants what one already has?

Don't flinch under adversity. Keep your chin up. Look straight ahead. If, for some reason you go down—get up again. Said the Prodigal Son: "I must arise and go to my father." It took courage and the swallowing of a great deal of pride—but he did it—and brought joy to the father who awaited him.
Don't gamble. No one ever gets something for nothing. In the end the gambler always loses. His day of winning is short. Work alone ennobles.

Don't envy the other fellow. Every man and woman has something that no other human being has. Develop that one thing and make it outstanding.
Don't give up. Keep going. Let nothing floor you. Life is not merely one fight—but a thousand, perhaps. Win as many as you can and take the losses like a grand sport. In your heart forever remain an undefeated champion!

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Silent Sit-down Strike against Treasury And OPA Is Being Staged, Pearson Says

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24—A lot has been printed about labor strikes, but not much about the silent sit-down strike of certain employers.

This is a strike chiefly against the OPA and the Treasury. Ultimately, of course, it is also a strike against the public.
Many corporations are operating with small staffs determined to "wait out" the OPA and not operate until reduced taxes are put in force. That is one reason why it may be months before you can buy your new radio, your new automobile or your new washing machine. The makers of these commodities, realizing that they cannot hope to sell more than one machine per customer in less than about a four-year period, want to sell at their own terms, and at the highest possible profit. That's why they're waiting for OPA ceilings to be removed. That's also why they want to wait until excess profits are voted down.

If they don't sell goods between now and Jan. 1, they keep their 1945 profit levels as low as possible, and if the 1945 profit does not exceed the average profit for the 1936-1939 period, they will receive large tax refunds from the government.

That's why practically no radios for the American public are being produced at RCA's Camden, N. J. plant, or at General Electric plants in Bridgeport, Conn., and Syracuse, N. Y., or in the several large radio plants in the Chicago area. Although there has been time since V-J day for production of at least 3,000,000 radios for Christmas, not over 500,000 will be on the market.
In the field of housing, real estate dealers are concentrating on high-priced housing, and will continue to do so until OPA rent controls are removed. Then they can charge whatever rentals they want for the lower-priced housing; also for the housing they already have.

Bombs for Congress
Six members of a congressional committee sailing to Europe last August were nearly scared out of their wits while on the Queen Mary. Headed by Representative Louis Rabaut, of Michigan, a subcommittee of the House Appropriations committee had debated whether to fly or to go by boat. Finally they decided to sail—but they wished they hadn't.

The group which decided to enjoy some relaxation on steamer chairs included Dean Gillespie, of Colorado; Robert Jones, of Ohio; Butler Hare, of South Carolina; Thomas O'Brien, of Illinois; and Judge John Kerr, of North Carolina. Kerr had argued for the boat trip and finally convinced his colleagues.

The congressmen were just beginning to relax on their first night out from New York when an army officer came to Chairman Rabaut with a disturbing message.

"The skipper thought you gentlemen ought to know," he said, "that we have just received a code message from the FBI. They report they have discovered there are a number of incendiary bombs on the boat scheduled to go off at midnight."

"There are several companies of Japanese-Americans troops on board," the officer told Rabaut, "and Japan is still at war with the United States."
Rabaut called his colleagues together and told them the news. Judge Kerr's first comment was: "I wonder if the skipper has ordered airplanes to hover around the ship." All were alerted for the entire night while the ship crew searched unsuccessfully for the bombs. No trace of them was ever found, but the restful relaxation the congressmen had hoped for was not achieved until they set foot on solid ground once again.

Jap Preparations
U. S. Reparations Commissioner Ed Pauley will leave for Japan early next month to study the situation there. However, policy on reparations will be determined, not by MacArthur, but back in Washington after Pauley's return.

Along with Pauley will go two excellent advisers—Owen Lattimore, former adviser to Chiang Kai-Shek and leading expert on the Far East; plus Joseph de Bois, of the Treasury, who was with Pauley in Europe. Both Lattimore and de Bois have definite convictions on routing out Jap militarism and building up a Japanese democracy. They are strong supporters of Justice Byrnes' broad-gauged policy for Japan.

James Angell, former Columbia University professor now with the Foreign Economic Administration, will be named to carry on Pauley's work on European reparations. Angell is a sound, progressive economist.

Capitol Chaff
Democratic Congressman Louis Rabaut, of Detroit, an A-1 member of the House Appropriations committee, will run for governor of Michigan next year. Secretary of Commerce Wallace is worried over the way the Truman administration is drifting.

American soldiers in Tokyo are turned up over Gen. MacArthur's decree that the Imperial hotel is off-limits for all enlisted men. Only officers can go there. They are asking if they fought this war to set up a caste system in the Pacific.

Harry Truman has told friends that he realizes his political prestige has begun to slip for the first time. He is now facing two deadly difficult problems—reconversion at home, snarled-up relations with Russia abroad. The fact that Truman realizes his troubles in itself is a good thing. Eight hundred Marines from the First division are still digging ditches on Okinawa waiting for transportation home. These are the same Marines who stormed Guadalcanal so heroically, but like some other heroes, are soon forgotten.

Simon and Schuster will soon publish the inside story of what happened inside the White House during the last thirty years. It is the diary of the late Col. Edward M. Starling, long head of the White House Secret Service.

Elmer Davis, who gave up his radio news commentaries in 1942 to become head of the OWI, will be back on the air in a few weeks. This time he will broadcast from Washington.

Pacific Bases
Despite army opposition, the navy is not delaying a bit about getting its foothold in the Pacific islands. On the theory that possession is nine-tenths of the law, it is recruiting men with families to live on these islands at once.

The Foreign Economic Administration, part of which was transferred to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, is working with the navy on this program.

An enticing picture is laid before prospective recruits, featuring prefabricated, air-conditioned houses, fresh meat and vegetables flown in by air, and a network of commercial air lines between islands which the navy plans to operate. Salaries are good, as government salaries go.

These men will be commercial representatives of the RFC, which will become the trading corporation for the islands. Every effort is being made to get the men signed up and on their way this month.

Truman Swallows Army Training Idea, Lawrence Says

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24—President Truman has swallowed hook-line-and-sinker the militaristic approach to universal military training.

He has accepted the plans of the high-ranking generals and militaristic inclined civilians in the War department who believe that it is desirable to interrupt higher education for military purposes even in time of peace.

Instead of proposing a plan that would make it optional for the boy to take one year's training any time between the ages of 18 and 24, the president accepts the War department's proposal that between high school and college all boys must interrupt their studies and spend a year in a military camp. This proposal will never be accepted by Congress if the liberals of the country and the persons who believe in higher education become vocal about it.

Doctor Shortage an Example
The only answer that some of the War department experts have at times made to the point is that it isn't democratic to worry about college educations. This is but another way of saying that it isn't necessary to develop doctors or dentists or scientists or any of the other professional groups so essential to American life. The shortage of doctors today in civilian communities is due directly to such short-sightedness by the military chieftains.

As for the future, there is to be a shortage of medical men for many years to come so that even the veterans with recurrent disabilities are going to have a hard time getting medical care in the next several years.

There are some educators who have been persuaded to take the War department's view of military training but they are a minority. It has been contended by most of the others that when a boy graduates from high school he should go ahead with his college education because the one-year interruption keeps him out of the habit of concentration on studies and even may require refresher courses to recover ground in some of the interrupted studies.

Desirable Age Bracket

The army has not considered a boy of 23 or 24 unfit for training. In fact, during the war this was considered a desirable age bracket for making non-commissioned and commissioned officers. So if the proposal were to permit boys to take the year of training any time between 18 and 24, some who were not going to college could take the year early whereas others could take it after their college courses.

The president repeats in his message to Congress the same illogical arguments that the army chiefs have made before.

"The argument has been made," he says, "that compulsory training violates traditional American concepts of liberty and democracy and even that it would endanger our system of government by creating a powerful military caste. The purpose of the program, however, is just the contrary."

Never Conceded
Mr. Truman may not know it but no militarist ever conceded a militaristic purpose. The development of a military caste cannot be prevented just by stating that there isn't any intention to develop one. Militarism is a state of mind and a system of teaching which can easily be foisted on the youth of America as was on the youth of Germany. If boys are taken at an impressionable age and taught the latest methods of killing, it is not likely that their professional officers will fail to tell them how to hate and how to bayonet their potential enemies—as was done during the war by a voluminous literature called "indoctrination."

"The objective," says the president, "is not to train professional soldiers. It is to train civilians, so that if and when the Congress should declare it necessary for them to become soldiers, they could do so more quickly and more efficiently."

It is difficult to see the president's distinction and it would have been better to acknowledge that the purpose is to train soldiers and make the best soldiers America can produce. But this can be done as well with boys of much more mature age and with a system of civilian supervision to avoid militaristic teachings than by entrusting the task to the military departments.

Hint in Paragraph
A hint of the militarism that lurks in the proposal is to be found in the following paragraph of the president's message:

"Under the plan which I propose, provisions should be made within the armed services to help trainees improve their educational status."

Presumably under such a plan the army would be hiring teachers away from the colleges and high schools and this would mean an entire educational system overlapping the civilian educational system.

"The period of training could well be used," the president adds, "to develop in our young men the ideals of responsible American citizenship."

This is a large order. Not a single textbook the army got out during the war on this subject was free from criticism, because opinion differed on what constitute "ideals." The president admits, moreover, that the emphasis isn't going to be on "mere drilling" any longer or on calisthenics but "on the use of all the instruments and weapons of modern warfare."

The business of organized killing may be over for the time being, but the training to do more killing apparently must go on.

Divided Support Is Seen Putting Truman in Bad

By MARK SULLIVAN

President Truman, as he prepared to address Congress this week, may have reflected upon the willingness of that body to accept leadership from him. To think about that is inseparable from his office. The relation between the two is a common topic of Washington talk.

A frequent conclusion is that the president does not have great weight with Congress. But so unqualified a statement has implications which go beyond the facts.

Last spring, after Mr. Truman became president, the equally frequent statement was that relations between him and Congress were friendly. That was true. Congress liked and respected the new president. He was cordial toward them. Some of the liking on the part of Congress was an expression of a sense of relief and contrast, compared with the turmoil in their relations with President Roosevelt.

No Concrete Test
But there was, in that early period, no concrete test of the willingness of Congress to follow Mr. Truman's leadership. He recommended a measure, to change the order of succession upon the death of a president. Congress, after some discussion of the idea, did nothing about it. But that was not thought of as a refusal of Congress to follow the president's leadership on any matter of disputed principle.

Today, after some six and a half months of Mr. Truman's presidency, a record has accumulated. It shows a considerable divergence on the part of Congress from the president's wishes. It is natural to ask why, and to speculate on whether some different course or attitude on the part of the president might have led to a different record.

Mr. Truman, in several of his requests for legislation, has gone counter to what he should have learned through his experience in the Senate. Is a strong trend in Congress. This is resistance to the spread of federal bureaucracy, insistence that some government functions be kept by the states, or restored to them. On this issue Congress has in two conspicuous instances resisted the president.

Employment Control Shifted
Mr. Truman, with some justification, "urgently recommended" the continuation, for a limited time, of federal control over the distribution of services. These, early in the war, had been taken over from the states and given to the United States Employment Service. Against Mr. Truman's request, practically all the states asked for return of the services to them. The House has voted to return the services to the states.

Mr. Truman asked for a measure by which the federal government would make gifts to unemployed persons, supplementary to the insurance benefits which are paid by all the forty-eight states. This would change the standard set by the states, and in some degree interfere with administration by the states of their own systems. The House Ways and Means committee voted to suspend action on Mr. Truman's proposal indefinitely.

So far as causes of divergence between Mr. Truman and Congress can be identified, one has to do with Mr. Truman's relation to C. I. O. and its Political Action Committee. Congress itself does not like C. I. O. There are members whose votes

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

HOLLYWOOD—The real situation has really changed since the end of the war. When I went overseas in June, I knew a fellow who was living in a peabottom. Now he's taking in boarders.

Even those screwy Hollywood drive-ins have been converted to residences. The one in my neighborhood is shaped like a hamburger and it's got three families living in the pickle. It's so bad that I read on a park bench yesterday a book and three people were interested on page one.

I know one fellow who's renting his regular $2.00 rooms for $8.00 a night, and it makes me hot when I see the cars. I wish that inspector from the O.P.A. wouldn't breathe so hard on people who pay fabulous prices for living anywhere. My Great Dane shares his kennel with a dog and every Saturday when I come home with my pay-check, he sits there looking over my record and sneering at me.

coincide with the position taken by C. I. O. But of these is a considerable number who they do not regard as C. I. O. the number who can be considered responsive to it is comparatively small. It is highly organized and aggressive pressure put upon Congress by C. I. O. arouses more resentment than acquiescence.

Negative Attitude Seen
Feeling this way, Congress serves, or thinks it observes, one part of the president, an attitude of trying to get along with C. I. O. or temporizing with it, or certain something short of resisting it. To observe that many of the measures Mr. Truman endorses are ones which C. I. O. and similar schools of thought clamor for. They serve C. I. O. demanding a three per cent increase in wages, a strike or threaten to strike to it. And on Mr. Truman's part, to observe a negative attitude as the strikes, and as respects the wage issue, repeated postponement of action.

Mr. Truman has to think of relation with Congress. He has to think of himself, by tradition, political practice, as head of a party. As party head, he has groups which are plainly opposed to each other. One is the school thought symbolized by C. I. O. The other is the orthodox Democratic Congress, many of the orthodox Democrats frequently vote with Republicans, and the combination amounts often to control of Congress. To lead a divided party at the same time lead Congress is a difficult task.

Uses of State Game Fund Clarified by Attorney General's Office

BALTIMORE, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Fish and game propagation and payment of salaries for game and inland fish commission officers and employees are the sole purposes for which the state game protection fund may be used, the attorney general's office has ruled.

In a formal opinion requested by the state game and fish commission, the attorney general's office said that unexpended balances from that fund could not be diverted for extraneous use but must be turned back to the state treasury.

Garner W. Denmead, game commission chairman, said the Maryland League of Sportsmen suggested that the commission seek this clarification to determine whether the protection fund was inviolate.

Denmead said the commission has always felt the fund's utilization was restricted by specifications.

Murder Warrant Will Be Issued For Bittinger Man

Neil C. Fraley, Garrett county state's attorney, said yesterday that a warrant will be issued for murder against Herman Ray Fazenbaker, 23, of near Bittinger, Garrett county, in the death of Loman Wilt, 42, also of Bittinger, who died early yesterday morning in Memorial hospital of shotgun wounds.

Fraley said that he had been informed that Wilt and Allen Stanton had been hunting together in the woods and were on their way home using a back road. About 9 p. m. last Tuesday night the two men spotted Fazenbaker in the woods with a carbide light on his hat. The men directed a flashlight on Fazenbaker. Fraley said, and Fazenbaker promptly fired his shotgun. Wilt fell, hit in the abdomen, groin and right arm.

Joseph A. Minke, regional game warden, who was present at the questioning said Fazenbaker stated that he "thought he was shooting a game warden."

Minke said Fazenbaker declared he fired at a deer after which a flashlight was flashed in his face and he fired at the light.

Fazenbaker admitted firing the shotgun and said the light from the flashlight frightened him, according to the state's attorney, who said Fazenbaker told him he was hunting deer out of season.

Wilt and Stanton said they heard a shot shortly before they spotted Fazenbaker.

Fazenbaker has been held in the Garrett county jail without bail since the shooting.

Sgt. Harold C. Carl and Trooper Glen D. Folk of the state police are investigating the case.

declared value excess profits tax and by making reductions in the graduated surtax on corporations with incomes of less than $60,000 a year.

$100,000,000 for owners of automobiles and boats, through repeal of the 55-a year use tax.

One effect of the recommended changes in the individual income tax is to remove an estimated 12,000,000 persons from the rolls. Of the 36,000,000 remaining, 32,000,000 are in the lowest surtax bracket would get precisely the same relief, as under the House bill, with a combined normal and surtax rate of nineteen per cent on taxable income above exemptions, rather than twenty-three per cent as under present law.

Difference In Bills Noted
One of the major points of difference between the House and Senate bills, which must be solved in conference, is the treatment of war-time excess taxes. The House voted to reduce the rates on such things as furs, liquor, toilet articles, movie tickets, light bulbs and luggage to the 1942 level on next July 1, for an estimated loss of $999,000,000 in the last half of 1945.

The senate committee, however, recommended that the rates be allowed to stand until six months after the formal proclamation of the end of the war.

The Senate also called for special tax treatment for veterans — forgiveness of all federal income taxes on service incomes during the war years, and an extension of time for officers to pay taxes which piled up during the war.

4. Recognition of conciliation, mediation and arbitration possibilities while negotiating initial contracts.

5. In negotiating successive contracts, inclusion of such provisions as: (a) extension of the old contract while discussions are on; (b) no-strike, no-lockout clauses in the contract; (c) use of mediation and arbitration when negotiations are deadlocked; (d) assurances that both management and labor will live up to agreements; (e) provisions for union control of reclassification members and management of its component parts.

6. Should provision be made for strengthening of the United States Conciliation Service and should it have added "support."

7. How can inter-union and jurisdictional strikes be lessened.

and equipped with tuve-type Hudson grates is built in the interior of the boiler head. The equipment includes the elevator housing and the distributor for a standard HT stoker. A steam whistle, scaled to half size, is located on the left side of the boiler and is operated by compressed air.

A quarter-size working model of the Walschaerts valve motion which is complete in every detail and has a sectional valve chamber and cylinder was built at the Hagerstown locomotive shops for installation in the car. The various types of mechanical lubricators in use on the railroad are represented in the displays as well as a protection drifting valve, a complete boiler check, a blow-off valve and a blower valve.

Equipment Is Demonstrated
A Nathan, a Sellers lifting type and a Hancock inspirator non-lifting type injector are all demonstrated. Parts of a Worthington feed-water heater and diagrammatic views of the Elesco exhaust-steam injector Type T are used to explain the functioning of these specialties.

Test equipment required by the water treatment engineer is shown and its use explained.

The car is completely outfitted with locomotive and car brake equipment. There are eight freight-car air brake units on the car.

This unusual "university on wheels" sits at present on a siding in front of the Western Maryland depot. The car and instructor Roth move from city to city to complete a cycle has been made. Then the car is put away for awhile until Western Maryland officials think it is time for some more education.

Lyem To Address Western Maryland Chemical Society

Local Chemist Will Discuss Synthetic Industry of Germany

Arthur Lyem, superintendent of the lamble department of the Celanese plant, will address the Western Maryland section of the American Chemical Society Friday at the Cumberland, Free Public Library at 7:30 p. m.

Lyem, recently returned from a special mission for the United States government in the European theater of operations, will talk on "Chemical Developments and Applications in the Synthetic Industries of Germany." The technical intelligence work and interrogation of enemy personnel that was done on his assignment, took Lyem from the Swiss border to the North sea.

Economics To Be Discussed
In this lecture, the second of a series featuring local speakers, a general discussion will be given on the conditions of German industry, the bombing effect on industrial areas, and the economics and military condition of the conquered and liberated European countries.

During Lyem's trip, made by air and car, he observed the problems created by displaced persons, he saw the different types of army billeting and men in the separate zones, and he observed the attitude and co-operation of the German people.

All of these factors will be covered in his talk along with a description of the co-ordination and team work between the intelligence officers of the various Allied army groups and the target and technical forces.

Served in Swiss Army

Lyem was born at Zurich, Switzerland, where he studied chemistry. Upon graduation he was employed in government laboratories and Swiss industrial plants as a chemist. From 1918 to 1925 he served with the Swiss army as a lieutenant in the field artillery and air corps.

When he came to this country in 1925, he accepted a position in New Jersey as plant manager and research chemist. He has been associated with the Celanese Corporation of America since 1933 as a departmental superintendent.

Since resuming private flying in 1935, Lyem has been active in local aeronautical activities and during the war emergency commanded the Army Maryland wing of the Civil Air Patrol from 1942 to 1945 as major.

Hagerstown To Purchase Certificates in Drive

HAGERSTOWN, Oct. 24 (AP) — Mayor Richard H. Sweeney announced today that $500,000 in United States treasury seven-eighths percent certificates of indebtedness would be purchased by Hagerstown in the forthcoming victory loan drive.

Vidkun Quisling

munique said. "But he did not ask the king for a reprieve."

"This request was made by Mrs. Quisling on behalf of her husband. In council yesterday the king decided that Quisling was not to be reprieved and that judgment was to be executed. It was executed through shooting at 2:40 a. m. today. Relatives were informed at 9:00 a. m. this morning."

It was not known whether the puppet leader made any last minute statement. During his three-week trial he hysterically called himself "The Saviour of Scandinavia," the "Martyr of Norway" and in his final plea called himself "Quisling, the Patriot."

Experts examined him and found him sane. A foreign affairs spokesman intimated, after the execution, that his brain would be removed for study. The body presumably will be turned over to relatives for burial.

Quisling rose from relative obscurity to become chief collaborator with the German administrators of Norway after Hitler's army invaded the country in April, 1940.

After a brief army career—he resigned a major's commission in 1928 after a quarrel with the general staff—he tried his hand at politics.

The farmer's party government named him minister of defense in 1932 and he presided over Norway's disarmament.

The following year he organized his own party, the "Nasjonal Samling," but in two elections not a member was elected to the Storting (Parliament).

But under the Germans he became puppet ruler of Norway. Strikes and sabotage answered Quisling's appeal for Norwegian co-operation with the Germans. Jackboots storm troops and several German divisions helped Quisling maintain some semblance of order throughout the German occupation.

King Haakon's exiled government in London sentenced Quisling to death in absentia in October, 1942. He was not arrested until the German armies collapsed in all Europe.

Surrendered Last May
Last May 9 a bullet-proof limousine drove up to the Oslo police station, and Quisling and six associates surrendered.

At his trial opening in August, Quisling insisted he had acted for the good of Norway. The prosecution charged he had conferred with Hitler months before Norway was invaded and urged such action, that he handed defense data to the Germans, and had urged Norwegian troops not to resist after the Nazis landed in Norway.

Sentenced to death, Quisling personally appeared before Norway's Supreme Court to beg leniency. The high court confirmed the death sentence eleven days ago.

Economist Predicts

accompanied by unemployment—and total loss of earnings—for about 8,000,000 persons by next spring, the OWMR study predicted.

At the same time the total national output will drop from its wartime rate of $206,000,000,000 to $165,000,000,000 or somewhat less as military production declines.

The reaction of the advisory board to these studies was not immediately made known, and White House officials said Truman had no comment to make.

However, the flurry of activity in the White House and in Snyder's office indicated that Truman was preparing shortly to issue his promised statement on wage-price policy.

ENDORSE O'CONOR'S PROPOSAL TO REPEAL WAR RISK CLAUSE

ANNAPOLIS, Oct. 24 (AP) — The state unemployment compensation department gave prompt endorsement today to Gov. O'Connor's proposal that the war risk clause of the act's merit rating provisions be repealed.

"The position you have taken," Chairman Russell S. Davis of the compensation board wrote the governor, "is highly commendable and consistent with the best interest of the public."

"This provision, which does not permit an employer whose payroll is fifty percent greater than his payroll for the year 1940 to receive a tax reduction, was placed in the act to strengthen the fund to withstand the heavy impact of unemployment expected at the close of the war and during the reconversion period."

"When the collections are completed for the third quarter of this year, which should be in a few days, the reserve fund will be in excess of $130,000,000."

"Benefits are now being paid at the rate of approximately $25,000,000 annually and it is obvious, therefore, that the fund is in a strong position and well able to sustain such strains as may be placed upon it during the entire period of reconversion."

"The wage risk clause placed in the act was a source of income to the fund of approximately $10,000,000 a year. Should this section be repealed on wages paid after September 30, 1945, employers will be granted tax reductions in the amount of $7,000,000."

Hagerstown Cleans Mains To Double Water Supply
HAGERSTOWN, Oct. 24 (AP) — Citizens of Hagerstown will receive double the present daily flow of 3,000,000 gallons of water from mountain reservoirs when the program of cleaning water mains is completed. Richard Wilson, superintendent of the water department, reported today.

Between three and four tons of rust and silt were removed from a mile of 12-inch main which was laid fifteen years ago. Mason said two other mains between Hagerstown and Smithsburg, were laid thirty-eight and sixty-four years ago, respectively, and have never been cleaned.

LISTEN WORLD!

—By Elsie Robinson
(Registered U. S. Patent Office)

The most demoralizing habit you can wish on yourself is one you may never take seriously or of which you may even be proud. It's called—Indecision.

You grin or giggle. "How absurd to treat indecision as a vice," you say. "Of course it's a nuisance, not being able to make up your mind. But some people are just made that way. They can't help themselves. And after all, it isn't so very important."

Guess again, stranger. The ability to make decisions is just about the most important thing in your life. That doesn't mean you must always pick the winning number—or wait until you're sure. It isn't WHAT you decide that counts. The big issue is to DECIDE SOMETHING. Make a choice—some kind of choice, so long as it is thoughtful and sincere. But never let any issue drift, however trivial it may seem.

For decisions are the very essence of life. They shape your character and fate.

Your decisions are as vital as your heartbeat—and serve the same purpose, mentally. Every time your heart throbs your blood circulates. It passes on its mysterious journey through the arteries and is cleansed and renewed. And with each renewal your whole body is strengthened. If your blood does not circulate normally you are soon off the beam. Out of touch with life. And the same thing happens when you evade a decision.

A decision does for your character what a heartbeat does for your circulation. It changes and renews you. It gives you a new WILL. HARK within yourself and fortifies you to face the next hard test, from the time you cut your first teeth until you discard your last toupee.

You aren't as old or as wise as the number of your years. . . or the rating on your Intelligence Quota.

You are as mature and as strong as your ability to make decisions.

Remember when you were trying to decide between the brown and blue Spring suits? It was exciting at first, but presently you began to feel as if you were in a tug-of-war. Mentally as well as physically you were torn apart until you were literally exhausted. And ended finally by choosing the green dress which you disliked from the start.

"I was a wreck when I got home!" you said. But you don't realize that such wreckage will last much longer, go much deeper than a short trip home. By the the weakness of that indecision you have demoralized your whole character — undermined your whole future.

For your whole life is based on your will power. But people aren't born with will power—they create it by making decisions, right or wrong. Even a wrong decision may add to your dimensions and be quite as necessary for your growth as a wiser one. Often there's far more profit

Another Niland Bobs Up
Crothers' Record Stands
When Biggs, Togan Starred
Bowers Stresses Strain
By C. V. BURNS

Another Niland will be unveiled before the local athletic faithful when the American Legion stages its amateur boxing tournament next Monday and Tuesday in the state armory.

The newcomer in the back-busting sport is Frankie Niland, youngest brother of Joe and Bill. He tips the beam at 135.

Bill, the oldest of the trio, was the class of the local amateur lightweights back in the 1930s and he figured in a number of professional bouts before he hung up the gloves. Joe was next in line and he gave a good account of himself in the minor pure ranks.

"Frankie looks plenty good," Joe tells us. "Watch him throw the leather in next week's show," he adds.

It has been twenty years since one of the greatest trapshooters in the history of the sport appeared here but sports writers are still listing some of his outstanding achievements.

Steve Crothers, of Chestnut Hill, Pa., has the most unusual record of any man in the clay target smashing game, compiling the highest amateur registered average ever turned in over a twenty-year period. From 1923, the year the amateurs took over the sport, Steve pointed his shotgun at 66,915 targets and broke 65,497 of them for a mark of .9788.

Crothers won the Pennsylvania state championship on fourteen occasions. He called for 2,800 targets, 200 at each shoot, and lost but eight of them for an average of .99. In three champion of champions races at the Grand American shoot in Vandalia, Ohio, Steve missed but one target of the 600 trapped to him, winning by 200 straight in 1925, repeating the performance in 1931, then losing but one target of his 200 the following year. No other amateur shooter has approached this achievement.

Charles R. "Huck" McFerran and the late Frank "Daddy" Billmeyer were instrumental in bringing Crothers to Cumberland in the days when trapshoots were held on the country club grounds.

Other great shooters who appeared here included Frank Troch, Fred Tomlin, the late Lester German, "Cappy" Chandler and Mowell Hawkins, cousin of Dr. A. H. Hawkins.

McFerran recalled that Troch and Crothers broke all the targets they shot at and each shooter carried off top cash awards of $200.

While on the subject of trap-shooting, "Huck" disclosed that George McCarty, a native of Rawlins, this county, was at one time president of the Amateur Trap-shooting Association, and was instrumental in the establishment of the permanent trapshooting grounds at Vandalia, Ohio, where the Grand American shoot is staged annually.

Has anybody seen "Toots" lately? "Toots" was the pet cat of Jim Crom manager of the Olympia hotel. The feline ace, which used to dart in and out of traffic at the corner of Mechanic and Baltimore street and turn somersaults on the sidewalk just to amuse the pedestrians, suddenly disappeared two months ago.

"She's either been picked up or she's eloped," is the way Crom puts it. "Jim has supported 'Toots' and her family at the hotel for three years and he's heartbroken over her disappearance."

An organized search for "Toots" was conducted by the police department, so Desk Sgt. John Sherry says, but the gray cat with a ribbon and bell around its neck could not be found.

If anyone knows of "Toots" whereabouts will they please tell her to come home and all will be forgiven.

The signing of a Negro shortstop by the Montreal Royals, of the International League, brought back memories of the days when Elmo Biggs, the ebony bused backfield star played with Ridgeley. Biggs was one of the best sandlot gridgers ever developed locally and many of the other white teams would have liked very much to have him on their side.

The Frostburg Trojans also flashed a great Negro halfback in the person of Eddie Togan, who had speed to burn, and played a prominent role in many of the team's triumphs.

When the Hurricanes, an all Negro team was organized, Elmo was the sparkplug of their backfield.

It's the opinion of Walter L. Bowers, veteran football and basketball mentor at Allegany high, that he two-game grid series between its schools, inaugurated during the war due to transportation difficulties, should be abandoned after this year.

"There is five times as much pressure and emotional strain on the boys in these games than in contests with outside schools and this is not a good condition for schoolboys," Bowers declared.

Veteran Referee To Handle Legion Tourney Matches

James E. Kelley, Jr., Has Worked 250 Bouts in Last 13 Years

A veteran ring official, who has handled approximately 250 bouts in the last thirteen years, will work the majority of bouts in the American Legion's amateur athletic carnival when James E. "Jim" Kelley, Jr., steps through the ropes next Monday and Tuesday nights at the state armory.

Kelley started out as the "third man" in 1932 when the Devon Club was staging high-class amateur boxing shows at Luke. At that time Dr. Paul Wilson was the chief referee, and due to the fact that the shows usually comprised from ten to twelve bouts an evening, "Doc" needed help and "Jim" was selected.

Jim had been teaching boxing at the Central YMCA several years, and was also participating in local amateur shows as well as making trips annually to Baltimore for the South Atlantic A.A.U. tournaments.

He taught boxing at the "Y" until 1936 when he became a member of the Cumberland Police Department as motorcycle officer. He was the prime organizer of the Cumberland Police Boys' Club, and in fact, won an award from the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce after being adjudged the "outstanding young man of the year."

Looking back over the years of officiating, Kelley recalls that he worked sixteen bouts in one night during a tournament sponsored by the Boys' Club. The next night during the finals, he worked ten more matches. Jim lost about ten pounds during this tourney. He also refereed for the YMCA boxing tourney back in 1938. There were fifteen bouts on the one night program.

Kelley says one of the best boys developed in the local amateur shows was Ray Landis, a Greenspring, W. Va., youngster, who bagged the 135-pound title during the Boys' club tourney. Landis had four bouts on his way to the championship and won all by first round knockouts. Ray later entered the professional ranks and was ranked in the first ten nationally for several years.

Brant Hill Hardest Jim McFerran Charley (K.O.) Brant, the 175-pound knockout artist from Somerset, Pa., was the hardest hitter ever to participate in local simon pure shows in the last twelve years. He copped about eight bouts as an amateur via the K.O. route in a round or two.

Kelley relates that the "funniest" amateur bout was that between "Wild Bill" Wiseman, 185-pounder from Luke, and Bill Cover, 210 pound local lumber man. Clashing in SS Peter and Paul gym, the big fellows hit each other with everything but the ring posts, and their wild swings, misses and wrestling antics had the crowd in an uproar throughout. An attempt to rematch them fell through.

The deadline for filing entries for next week's show is Saturday at midnight.

Russo and Jeffra To Clash Monday

New Jerseyite Will Test Former Champion in Baltimore Ring

BALTIMORE, Oct. 24 (AP)—The comeback hopes of Harry Jeffra, former bantam and featherweight titleholder, are pinned on his 10-round match against Freddie Russo, Rahway, N. J., 126-pounder, headliner of the Baltimore Coliseum ring show Monday.

Russo, with a record of fifty-three victories in fifty-four professional fights, captured decisions from Pittsburgh Jackie Wilson, former featherweight champion, and Leroy Jackson in previous Coliseum bouts and will have Rocky Graziano, outstanding welter, in his corner Monday.

Jeffra, a Baltimorean, has not appeared before a home crowd since one of his defeat by Wilson last January.

The secondary eight-round feature on Monday's card will be fought by Jimmy Bell, Washington, and Al Blake, Baltimore, Negro heavyweights.

—Mexico City is to have a new baseball stadium seating 50,000.

RINGWISE VETERAN INSTRUCTS YOUTH IN BAG PUNCHING

THREE FORMER PROFESSIONAL BOXERS put in their appearance at the state armory on Tuesday night to give a few pointers to the youngsters in training there for the American Legion's amateur boxing tournament on Monday and Tuesday, October 29 and 30. Punching the heavy bag is Francis McIntosh, 150 pound Cumberland, who is entered in the novice class, and in the background demonstrating "here's how" is Fay W. Keiser, retired mid-dieght, who, in his prime, fought Harry Greb, world's 160-pound champion, nine times; Gene Tunney, ex-heavyweight and light-heavyweight champion twice, and got four shots in Madison Square Garden with Jimmy Darcy, Billy Shad, Young Bob Fitzsimmons and Jack Reeves. On the left is Howard "Red" Bush, another Cumberland middleweight slugger of recent years and holding the heavy bag is Danny Alberts, one-time Pacific Coast heavyweight, who is in charge of the boxing classes. The final training session in the basement of the armory will be held tonight commencing at 7 o'clock.

Maryland Racing Body Completes Inquiry in British Buddy Case

Attorney Cites Horse's Record; Terms Doping Charge "Absurd"

BALTIMORE, Oct. 24 (AP)—Trainer James McGee, of Louisville, Ky., was barred tonight from participating in Maryland racing programs for one year by the Maryland Racing Commission which heard evidence on the artificial stimulation of a winning thoroughbred.

"McGee was given the minimum penalty of one year because of his splendid record of never having been charged with a major violation of the rules in his twenty-eight years of racing," said Chairman George Mahoney, of the commission.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 24 (AP)—Testimony was completed tonight in the Maryland Racing Commission's inquiry into a laboratory analysis showing that British Buddy had been subjected to a stimulant before the horse won the Maryland Handicap at Laurel October 13.

Horses owned by Morris Wexler, of Cleveland, O., and trained by Jimmy McGee, of Louisville, Ky., have been under suspension from Maryland racing pending the commission's decision on the British Buddy case. The hearing began yesterday.

Under lengthy questioning at today's proceedings, Dr. James C. Munch, professor of pharmacology at Temple university, called as a witness for McGee, testified that it was possible the chemical analysis of British Buddy's saliva could have shown some other substance similar to caffeine.

Dr. Morgan Makes Tests He said that when tests are taken by a gauze swab, particles of food may be collected from the horse's teeth that have the properties of caffeine but may be something else, such as uric acid, "which is a regular component of the blood, urine and saliva."

The tests were made by Dr. Charles A. Morgan, chief chemist of the New York State Racing Commission, who testified previously that twenty-four tests were started each morning and twenty-four in the afternoon. If positive evidence of some drug is shown, the test requires most of two days, Dr. Morgan stated.

Dr. Morgan said that he believed Dr. Morgan's staff was "woefully inadequate" to conduct forty-eight tests per day and give them the sensitive exactness necessary. Dr. Morgan did not specify how much caffeine was found, and Dr. Munch said that if as much as twenty grains were administered to British Buddy fifty-one hours before the race "I doubt if there would be any significant effect, and no stimulating effect within a much shorter time, let alone fifty-one hours."

The racing commission's rules prohibit administering a drug to a horse within forty-eight hours of a race.

Under questioning by Richard J. Connor, of Washington, D. C., counsel for McGee, Dr. Munch said that sensitive tests would disclose caffeine even though it had been administered more than forty-eight hours before a saliva test were taken.

Under cross-examination by Hall Hammond, Maryland deputy attorney general acting as counsel for the racing commission, Dr. Munch said that a horse would have to be given fifty grains or more of caffeine "to produce a marked stimulating effect."

Dr. Munch said there was "a possibility" the caffeine came from substances around the teeth, but he could not say definitely.

Connor urged the commission during a final summary to consider McGee's "excellent reputation in racing" since 1918, and said it was "absurd to think that the trainer" would dope British Buddy, when it had won five or six races this year, and jeopardize his career.

The attorney also said he doubted the validity of the commission's rule making a trainer responsible whether he "knowingly or carelessly permitted it (a drug) to be administered."

Rams Gain 1,342 Yards In Four Winning Games CHICAGO, Oct. 24 (AP)—Cleveland's battering Rams, averaging almost five yards per smash, are convincing the rest of the National Football League that a good offense is the best defense.

The western division's unbeaten pace-setters lead the league offensively with a four-game total of 1,342 yards, 770 by rushing for a 4.6 average.

Monopolizing the ball has paid defensive dividends in the important department of opponents' scoring. Only thirty-five points have been tallied against the Rams.

Letmenow Scores In Grayson Stakes; Megogo Is Seventh

Filly Earns $9,675 First Money; Jockey Gilbert Set Down 20 Days

By JOHN F. CHANDLER BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 24 (AP)—Going to the front at the outset and staying there, Hal Price Headley's four-year-old filly, Letmenow, captured the eighth running of the mile and a half Grayson Stakes today at Pimlico, beating Greentree Stable's Willing Spirit by a length.

Nine of the best routers in training contested this $10,000 feature for three-year-olds and up, but Letmenow, given a good ride by Jockey P. A. Smith, set the pace under steady restraint and had enough left to meet the closing challenge of Willing Spirit.

Megogo Finishes Seventh Adelard Mamoureaux's Momo Flag was third, a length back of Willing Spirit and a head before Sandy Lane Farm's Dinner Party.

A crowd of 14,379 persons was on hand for the program, conducted in chilly weather under dark clouds, and established Christiana Stable's Megogo the five-to-two favorite, but the four-year-old gelding finished seventh and never was in the running.

Letmenow, scoring her second success in twelve starts this season, earned $9,675 first money and her backers picked up $29.90, $13.10 and $8.30 for $2. She ran the distance in 2:34 3-5 over a fast track.

Dinner Party was the only real challenger for the first mile, while at the final bend there was a bunching up with Willing Spirit and Jockey Eddie Arcaro emerging in the home stretch to make a strong bid which fell short by a length.

Gilbert Is Suspended The stewards set down Jockey Johnny Gilbert for twenty days for impeding W. McIntosh's G. Girl in the fifth race. Gilbert, aboard Crispin Ogilby's Upper Level, was first, with G. Girl, E. Wood up, second. After Wood fled an objection the order was reversed, with G. Girl first and Upper Level placed second.

Stovey, Negro Hurler, Won 35 Game In International League in 1887

Protests of Kansas City over Robinson Signing Irk Branch Rickey

By JACK HAND NEW YORK, Oct. 24 (AP)—Branch Rickey thinks Jackie Robinson, the first Negro to crash the portals of modern organized baseball, is an "outstanding prospect" who should make the big league grade in Brooklyn after a period of "orientation" on the Montreal farm.

"I've never seen the boy play," admitted the Dodgers' president. "But the reports from my scouts indicate he should be able to play for Brooklyn after the proper schooling. He isn't ready right now and I don't think there is a Negro player anywhere who is ready."

"If I thought he was ripe for the majors, I would have signed him to a Dodger contract. Does that answer your question as to whether I was hedging on sending him to the minor leagues? He's no Babe Ruth but he's a good hitter. It's all up to him from now on."

Negro Pitched in 1887 For twenty-four hours after signing with Montreal, Robinson was tagged as the first Negro ever to enter organized ball. However, Fred Bendel, veteran baseball writer of the Newark News, and Secretary Bill Manley, of the International League, recalled a Negro star hurler at Newark in 1887.

Bendel said he was George Stovey who pitched for "The Little Giants" and earned thirty-five victories, still the high water mark for the circuit.

Asked what would happen if Robinson, former UCLA grid ace, failed to make the grade in Double A ball, Rickey observed: "We will make such adjustments as meet the requirements of the club and player. He has told me he doesn't want to go any place he won't be welcome."

Dodgers Have Other Farms In addition to Montreal, the Brooks have AA farms at St. Paul in the American Association and Mobile in the Southern Association. Next step down would be Fort Worth in the Texas league in A-1, followed by Newport News, Va. in the Class B Piedmont loop.

"Robinson will train with Montreal at Daytona Beach, Fla.," the executive said. "I hope he will have to undergo undue pressure that might harm his future. As far as any trouble with his own teammates and hotel and travel problems I feel all have been over-stressed. If any cliques should develop in the club, we will take steps."

"In talking to this young gentleman I considered only the Negro himself and the Brooklyn Baseball Club," stated Rickey. "No pressure groups had anything to do with it; in fact, I signed him in spite of such groups rather than because of them."

Commenting on reports that the Kansas City Monarchs, with whom Robinson played last summer, were threatening to protest to Commissioner A. B. Chandler the signing of one of their stars, Rickey blasted. "There is no Negro league as such as far as I am concerned. Negro baseball is in the zone of a racket and there is not a circuit that could be admitted to organized ball xxx."

Hopes To Own Negro Club "Eventually I hope the Negroes will have their own league under the administrative setup that governs all baseball. I hope to own a club in such a league."

Chandler declined to comment on the signing of Robinson and said he would decide whether any protest from the owner of the Monarchs would be entertained when he received the protest.

The "day after" comment by baseball men and sports editors a largely favorable and Rep. Poe (D-NY) hailed the signing as a definite step toward winning peace."

Undergarment Company To Start Hiring Employees By November 15

Official Says Union Shop Contract Is Signed with International Ladies Garment Workers

F. M. Benn, of the New York office of the Cumberland Undergarment Company said last night that the new firm which hopes to start hiring help by November 15 will eventually employ 500 persons and will mean an increased monthly payroll of between $35,000 and $60,000 for Cumberland.

"We anticipate a demand for merchandise that will exceed the supply for the next several years," Benn said and predicted that "once our factory is installed other needle companies will follow us in here."

Union Contract Signed
Benn announced that the undergarment company has signed a contract with the International Ladies Garment Workers Union headed by David Dubinsky covering the plant to be opened here. Under the terms of the agreement, the undergarment company will operate a union shop, provide vacations with pay and provide hospitalization for employees.

"Our firm has had contracts with the garment workers union for over twenty years," Benn said.

"Dubinsky is a man who believes in arbitration and is against strikes," Benn said. "And over a period of years he has accomplished much for his union."

The new firm is spending $50,000 in repairing the former General Textile Mills plant here and crews are now at work installing a new heating system, new plumbing including modern toilets with concrete floors and white enamel finish, a new roof, fluorescent lighting throughout the plant, a cafeteria, recreation room, locker and a cloak room.

The basement, which has 16,000 square feet, will be utilized for a recreation room and partitions will be put up and a plywood floor installed. Benn said music would be provided and "the girls can dance or anything they like down there."

Will Make Ideal Factory
Benn commented that the textile plant will make an ideal factory for the company which manufactures ladies underwear, slips, panties, gowns and pajamas. The building is so arranged that all the sewing machines can go on the west side of the building which has natural light, he said.

The first load of equipment is scheduled to arrive today. The machines will be set up in lines and sixteen girls work on a line. Forty machines will be installed on the first floor and 208 on the second. The rest will be miscellaneous machines including menders. The machines being installed are made of steel with metal legs and press board tops. They include cutting tables, examining tables, pressing table and sewing machines, and automatic stretching machines for the cloth.

Benn said the company hoped to put the first girls to work by November 15 and that more would be added as rapidly as conditions permitted. The training of the average girl requires about twelve weeks, he said, but the management expects to cut a few corners and girls will be trained for only one operation in the making of a garment, instead of all phases of the work.

To Use Local Help
The management hopes to have a total of 250 machines in operation sometime after the first of the year, and hopes to eventually build an addition to the present plant if conditions warrant it, Benn said. Benn stressed the point last night "that while we are bringing in a few key men the majority of the key jobs will be filled by Cumberland people. All building maintenance men formerly employed by the General Textile Mills have been retained. Claude T. Jett will be in charge of the office and H. Edgar Seem is in charge of building and maintenance."

Benn said last night that he was of the opinion that the Cumberland area would provide ample "young girl help" for the plant. Experience has shown that the best operators are up to 24 and 25 years of age, he said.

The management is now working in conjunction with the United States Employment Agency in the hiring of girls, Benn said. Further announcements will be made in the newspapers he added.

Likes Cumberland's Possibilities
Asked what he thought of Cumberland's prospects for further industrial development, Benn replied "good; it's surprising to me that some needle company hasn't been here before. There is a good possibility that others may follow our firm here; that's the way it usually happens."

Asked if there was any possibility that this would eventually exhaust the supply of workers, Benn replied, "no, his experience had shown that people generally went wherever there is employment which means that the population increases."

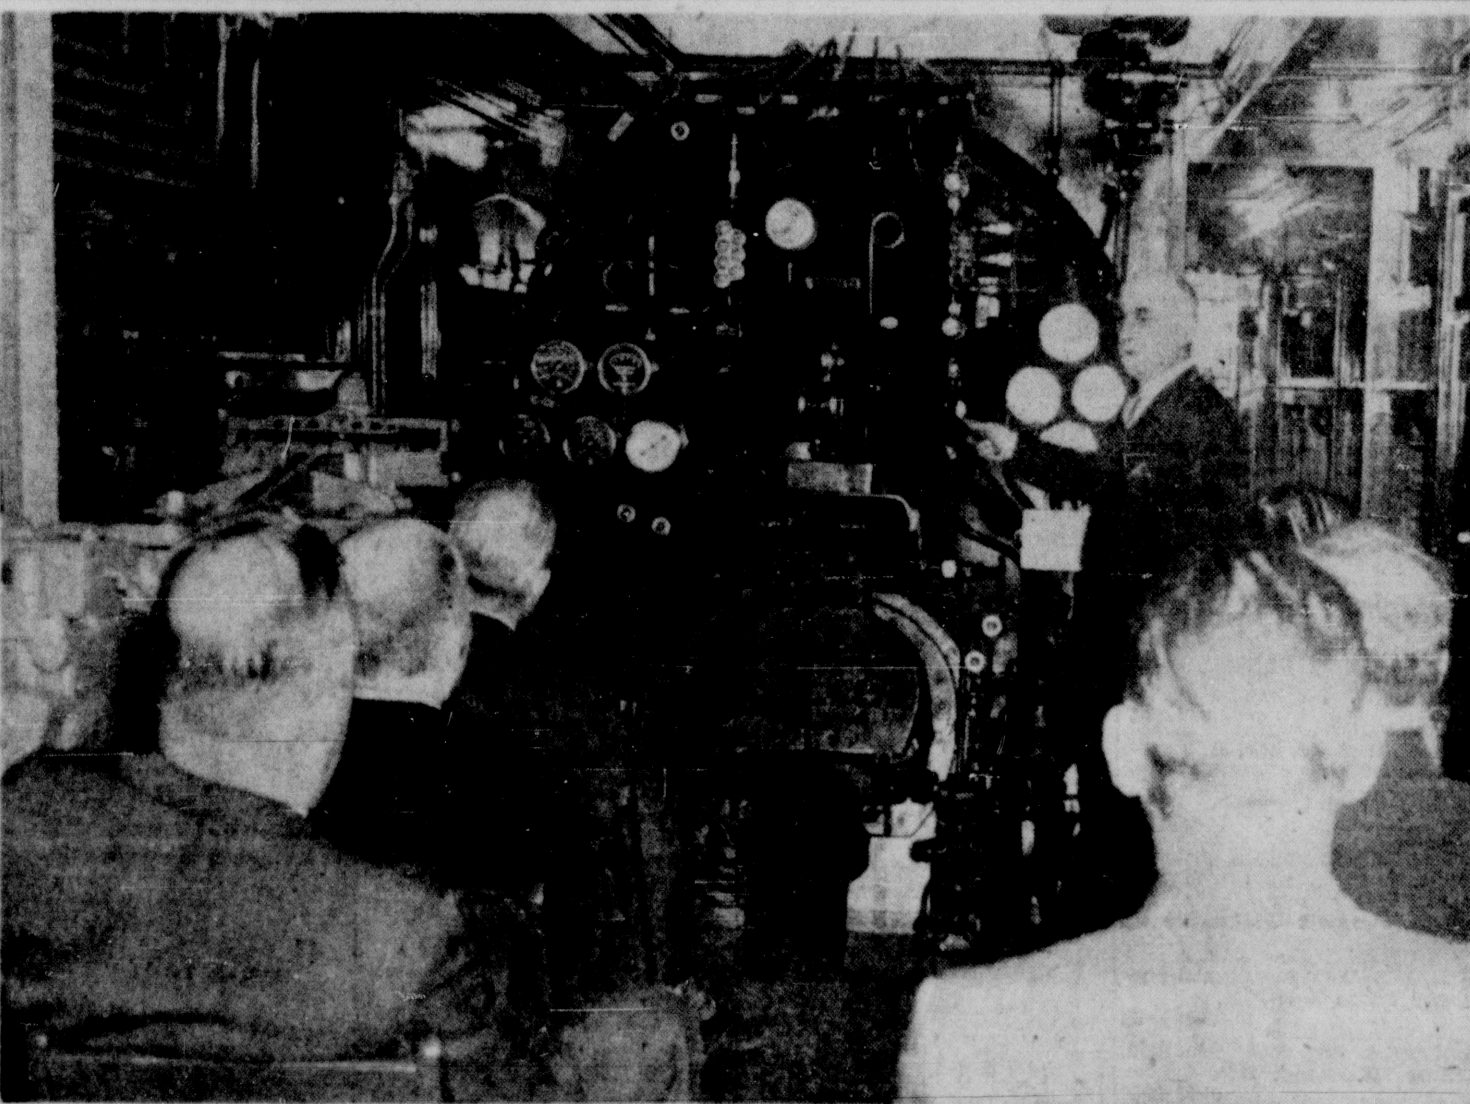

Benn said that officers of the firm planned to come to Cumberland next week for a routine visit and that Maurice Milberg, who will manage the Cumberland plant, will live here. Milberg is secretary-treasurer of the corporation.

Gulick, Cab Driver, Fined by Magistrate

Richard Gulick, Greene street, was fined $2 in police court yesterday after hearing on a charge of careless driving. His cab forced a car against a Baltimore street curb.

Myrtle Clingerman, Oldtown road, received a suspended sentence after hearing for violating the city sanitary code. She refused to repair a water line and was given fifteen days to make repairs.

Motion pictures on safety and other subjects are shown on a screen that rolls down in front of the backhead.

Rubber Workers Predict Victory In Strike Vote

Local 26, URWA, Officials Say Negotiations Will Continue

Although officials of Local 26, United Rubber Workers of America, declared the affirmative strike vote predicted today at the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company plant would not mean an immediate strike, Harley V. Brown, district URWA representative, declared yesterday the union is "not bluffing" in threatening a strike.

He explained that the NLRB strike vote today only preserves the union's legal right to strike and that no work stoppage would take place unless the union members so voted at a special meeting called at the union hall. Such a meeting, union officials said, will take place only after further negotiating meetings.

Sure of Outcome
There appears to be no doubt but that the majority of the 1,350 eligibles will cast ballots in favor of striking but neither union nor company officials are expressing an opinion as to the possible size of the vote.

The sample ballot for today's election terms the issue as the "refusal of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, Cumberland, Maryland, to meet the demands of the United Rubber Workers of America, CIO, Local 26, for a general increase in wages." It is pointed out a federal conciliator has attempted to adjust the dispute.

Eligible voters include "all tire repair and recappers of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, Cumberland, Maryland, during the payroll period ending October 21, 1945; excluding those employees working in the capacity of office, clerical, and supervisory employees, and those who have since quit or been discharged for cause and have not been rehired or reinstated prior to the election."

Begin Ballot Election
The secret ballot election will be held in the reception room, northwest corner of employment building, at the plant, from 6 a. m. to 7:30 a. m.; 2 p. m. to 4:30 p. m.; and from 10 p. m. to 11:30 p. m.

The question on the ballot is: "Do you wish to permit an interruption of war production in wartime as a result of this dispute?" Workers may vote "yes" or "no."

The OPA has announced that the Potomac Produce Company, Incorporated, 167 Bedford street, has paid $200 in settlement of an administrative consumer treble damage claim for overcharges on sales of bananas and potatoes in violation of OPA price ceiling regulations. ## Cumberland Fair Officials Plan Fairgo's New Judging Building

Plans to erect a judging building 40 by 50 feet, at Fairgo sometime this fall were discussed yesterday by Clinton W. White, manager of the Cumberland Fair Association, County Agent R. P. McHenry, and John Clark, field representative of the state fair association.

The new building, one that has been badly needed at Fairgo for years, will probably be a rectangular structure open at both ends and with a sloping roof.

Benches will be erected around the rectangle with a railing constructed to inclose the judging ring which will be covered with sawdust or tanbark.

It was pointed out yesterday that the new structure could also be used for a 4-H Club and Future Farmer of America judging contests, and beauty contests.

"What we need is a place to get in out of the rain," one member of the

Various Phases of Railroad Are Taught in "University on Wheels"

Western Maryland Employees Attending Classes in Instruction Car

By JAMES B. CRAIG

Western Maryland railway employees in Cumberland this week are attending classes in a $50,000 instruction car, a "university on wheels," which contains equipment that enables students to cover practically every phase of railroad "know how."

The instruction car, considered by many railroad men the finest in this country, was converted at the Western Maryland, Hagerstown shops, Sam Roth, the "professor," gives lectures in seven different courses covering air brake; mechanical equipment on steam locomotives; mechanical equipment on Diesel-electric locomotives; fuel conservation; water treatment; signaling and safety.

As a part of the safety course, Instructor Roth rolls down a screen in front of the locomotive backhead and shows motion pictures on the dangers of infections and the necessity of having scratches, cuts and bruises treated at once.

200 Classes Held
Yesterday, Mr. Roth showed a reporter and photographer through the car, demonstrating the devices on the backhead, showing how drive wheels work, and signal boards. The car is equipped with a complete panel of signals and students see them demonstrated.

Since the car has been in use approximately 200 classes have been held; the weekly average is about sixteen with a total of 3,000 man lectures to date.

At present, about seventy-five per cent of those attending lectures are men from the operating department of the road, the remainder being from the mechanical department.

The car has been divided into two sections, an office and a classroom. The instruction portion of the car is fifty-five feet in length from the door entrance to the office partition. The seating capacity of this section is thirty-four. Special fold up chairs are provided. The classroom has been finished with cream-colored ceiling, mahogany side walls and a blue marble inlaid linoleum floor. The car is as clean as the barracks of a crack regiment located near Washington.

Boiler Background Installed
Adequate lighting is obtained by the use of seven individual fluorescent lighting units which have a total capacity of 1,400 watts. Six exhaust fans and two air circulating fans provide the ventilation.

A boiler background has been installed in the car against the partition which divides the classroom and the office. It is complete in every detail and is comparable with the backhead of the most modern type of steam power except where additional valves and gauges have been applied for the purpose of demonstrating the various type of feed water heaters being used in the Western Maryland. ## Blood Donors Are Sought by Legion For Transfusions

Samuel A. Graham, commander of Fort Cumberland Post, No. 13, American Legion, has announced that a campaign is now under way to secure blood donors who will be available for transfusions at local hospitals.

Any veteran of World War II, according to Graham, is eligible to have his name placed on the Legion's register and no typing at the hospital will be necessary. All that the potential donor is required to do is fill out a coupon which will appear in this paper soon and send it to Thomas P. Conlon, Maryland Veterans Commission Office, Liberty Trust Building, Conlon is chairman of the campaign.

The blood type stamped on "dog tags" of any soldier, sailor or marine is the one which will be placed on file by Conlon.

Graham pointed out yesterday that many lives were saved here in recent years by the blood of World War I Legionnaires, but as the veterans are advancing in years the list has dwindled. Many of that group have been advised against contributing blood by their physicians.

All appeals from local hospitals will be made to the Maryland Veterans Commission office here or at Fort Cumberland Post. The list of records will be kept in Conlon's office.

Captain Laurence M. Barstow, officer in charge of the local army recruiting office, and Chief Boat-swain's Mate Bradford Smith, navy recruiter, both went on record yesterday as wholeheartedly favoring the project.

American Worker Wants Security, Firth Declares

The fundamental want of the American worker is security, George P. Firth, international vice president of the AF of L's Office Employees International Union, declared last evening at a meeting of Kelly-Springfield white collar workers at the Fort Cumberland hotel.

The group, which held its second meeting last evening, has been chartered as Local 162 of the office workers union.

Firth declared office workers have too often been listed as overhead by companies and not as production workers, and added both the public and management must be enlightened to the fact that white collar workers perform duties as vital as any other workers.

Standards Are Needed
Office workers, Firth said, have suffered economically because standard rates have not been established. He added that the setting of standards and wage classifications is one of the things the Office Employees union favors.

The union, he declared, is the only union organized exclusively for office workers and is issuing an average of two charters each week to new locals. The AF of L union was formed only a year ago, Firth added.

Claim Cafeteria Unit
The undeclared war for the right to represent Kelly office employees entered a new phase yesterday when Local 26, United Rubber Workers of America, officials said they had requested the international union for permission to contact the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company in regard to the recognition of Kelly cafeteria workers.

Harley V. Brown, district URWA representative, said the union has signed membership cards from thirty-nine of the forty workers in the unit and has asked permission to petition the National Labor Relations Board to certify the local as the collective bargaining agent for the workers.

Mildred Willison Will Be Speaker At State Meeting

Allegany Teachers Will Attend Maryland Association Convention

Miss Mildred E. Willison, supervisor in elementary schools here, will be the only Allegany county teacher to give an address at the seventy-eighth annual convention of the Maryland State Teachers Association tomorrow and Saturday in Baltimore.

Miss Willison will address the intermediate section tomorrow on the subject, "Development of Pupil Control for Future Citizenship." The meeting will be held at the Montebello school auditorium at Harford road and Thirty-second street. Mrs. Carletta Scarff McCarrie, of the Montebello school, will preside as chairman.

County Teachers to Attend
Charles L. Kopp, school superintendent, said yesterday that he did not know how many Allegany county teachers were planning to attend the convention, the first full-scale conference in several years. It was indicated, however, that the county would be well represented with a number of teachers in Cumberland planning to drive.

Miss Ruby Marie Adams, director of elementary education, said that the Navy day program in Baltimore was proving to be one drawback as hotel accommodations were difficult to get. However, Miss Adams said she knew of some teachers who were planning to drive to Baltimore for one day and then return the same night.

According to the program announced yesterday, the teacher conference will be of considerable interest with a number of well-known speakers booked.

Agnes E. Meyer, wife of Eugene Meyer, editor of the Washington Post, will be one speaker. Mrs. Meyer is widely known as a journalist and author of "Journey Through Chaos."

Another speaker scheduled to appear is LeRoy Stoddard, Washington news analyst whose address will be entitled "The Balkans."

Department Meetings Scheduled
Walter D. Head, headmaster of Montclair Academy and a former president of Rotary International, will discuss "Educators at the San Francisco Conference."

The convention will get underway tomorrow at 2:15 p. m. with a number of departmental meetings. The annual meeting of the representative assembly will be held Saturday at 10 a. m.

Miss Grace Adler, state supervisor of elementary education, will give an address on "Growth and Development of Children Through Art Activities" at a meeting of art teachers at the Baltimore Museum of Art. Miss Marjorie Billows, elementary supervisor of art, Montgomery county, will preside.

Local News in Brief
South End firemen reported that slight damage resulted from a fire in a shed at the rear of the home of Albert Baldwin, 4 West Oldtown road, early yesterday morning. The cause of the blaze was unknown, firemen said.

Chapter 914, Women of the Moose, will hold its regular meeting at 8 p. m. today at the Moose home, Beall and Smallwood streets. Mrs. Gertrude Williams, senior regent, will preside.

The Western Maryland Industrial Union council will meet this evening at 7:30 o'clock in the council hall.

Three Scouts Advanced
Dale Houshelt and William Anderson, Troop 6, Cresaptown, and James Miller, Troop 6, SS, Peter and Paul school, were judged eligible for awards at the board of review meeting Tuesday night of the Cumberland District Boy Scouts at the headquarters. Awards will be made October 30 at the library.

Houshelt was advanced to second class scout; Anderson won the fireman's badge; Miller the scholarship merit badge.

NLRB Strike Vote For Truck Drivers Planned Nov. 15

Union Threatens Action on Sunday unless Demands Are Met

Although arrangements were made here yesterday for a NLRB strike vote for truck drivers November 15, C. E. Stutzman, business agent of Local 453, Teamsters and Chauffeurs Union, declared yesterday that a strike will take place Sunday unless the union reaches an agreement with the operators before that time.

Miss Marian Rau, of the National Labor Relations Board, met with Stutzman yesterday and arranged for the strike vote. Ballots may be mailed after November 6 and must be on hand for the counting which will be made here November 15, Stutzman said.

However, the union official said, Local 453 yesterday notified the department of Labor that the union has complied with the terms of the Smith-Connally act, pointing out that the cooling-off period should have ended Sunday.

Will Meet Tomorrow
Stutzman declared there has been very little progress in the negotiations for a wage increase with eight trucking companies here but added that he will meet with a company representative and James A. Holden, federal conciliator, tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

Members of Local 453 will meet Sunday at 10 a. m. in the union hall, North Mechanic street. Drivers have already voted to strike, Stutzman said, but would confirm the action at the meeting.

Stutzman said the strike of Baltimore area drivers has not yet affected this area, but that truck drivers here would act if operators should attempt to avoid that area by re-routing Baltimore traffic by way of Winchester.

A work stoppage in the Winchester, Va., area, also threatened Sunday, was averted last Sunday when, after a meeting which lasted from 11 a. m. Sunday to 3 a. m. Monday, operators and Local 453 officials agreed on a working agreement to be effective for two years. The contract will be presented to the membership of the area Saturday evening.

Agree on Contract
The agreement includes a seven-year and one-half an hour increase for mechanics; ten cents for mechanic helpers and approximately ten cents hourly boost for miscellaneous garage employees.

City drivers, platform and warehouse workers will receive the same take home pay with a three cents hourly increase and a reduction from fifty-four to fifty-one hours workweek. During the second year of the contract the work week is to be reduced to forty-eight.

A few over-the-road drivers did not receive increases, Stutzman said, but drivers on most trips received an eight percent wage boost.

Returned Veteran Praises Monthly News Letters
Back from Berlin after a year and a half overseas, John F. Schaidt III, 24 Washington street, said the fact he would like to stress most was how much he appreciated the monthly news letters sent overseas by William A. Gunter and the members of the Allegany County Letter League.

"I really looked forward to them," the former Times and Alleganyan Company advertising man said. "They were news, homey and they came on time. They seemed to reach me, somehow, when letters and magazines didn't. One of the things I liked best was the way the letters kept up with news of other Allegany servicemen. That was a real service."

Schaidt declined to comment on his own personal experiences as a member of the Seventeenth Airborne Division which participated in the Normandy scrap and later drove into the Rhineland. After the Rhineland, Schaidt said he was transferred to the Eighty-second Airborne Division for occupation duty in Berlin.

He said Berlin proper was desolate and the interest of the surrounding countryside was in good condition. He said he did not care to comment on fraternization with German girls other than to say that he knew one person who didn't fraternize.

Schaidt, who arrived home Tuesday after being discharged from the service, said he planned to take a vacation after which he planned to resume his work with the Times and Alleganyan Company.

Urges Community Service
Barkan urged the union to participate in community services to a much greater extent than was done in the prewar period.

The union's obligation, to represent the interests of the worker, "does not end with the worker leaving the factory gate," Barkan said.

He added that the union must represent the worker in relation to his community to see that he is properly housed, his children are properly schooled and that health, recreation and welfare facilities in the community cover the needs of the citizenry.

"His Worship the Mayor" Is Asked To Report on Advantages of Buses
In his capacity as head of Cumberland's municipal government, Mayor Thomas S. Post receives dozens of routine communications regarding city affairs, but yesterday's mail brought a letter from Canada addressing him as "His Worship the Mayor" and asking him to submit a report on the advantages of bus transportation as compared to street cars.

The letter was written by Francois Caron, who described himself as "avocal-advocate" of the manufacturing city of Hull, in the province of Quebec.

"The city of Hull has decided to replace its tramway transportation system by a motor bus system, and for such a purpose we need to obtain a special permit from the Province of Quebec Transportation Board," Caron wrote.

"We have learned that your city has undergone a similar change a few years ago. If it is possible for you to state that your population

State Forester Asks Continuance of POW Camp To Aid Fruit Growers

District Forester William H. Johnson reported yesterday that State Forester Joseph F. Kaylor has announced that he is applying to the United States Department of Labor's Baltimore office for a certification of need to continue operation of the prisoner of war camp at Green Ridge to aid fruit growers.

Under original plans, the camp, housing approximately 140 Germans, was to be abandoned October 31. However, Kaylor said fruit growers in the Hancock area had urged continuance of the camp until more soldiers are discharged from the army, possibly until the first of the year.

The Labor department is expected to require from three to four days to pass on the request which then goes to the Third service command for approval, Kaylor said.

War Veterans Are Militant Strikers, Local 1874 Is Told

CIO Veterans' Program Director Terms High Wages "Propaganda"

An investigation of strike activities throughout the United States will prove that in almost every case the most militant and active participants are returned war veterans.

Just propaganda, Alexander Barkan, director of the veterans' program, National CIO Community Services Committee, told members of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, last night.

Barkan, who was discharged from the navy three weeks ago, declared that servicemen "are finding out that propaganda about high wages and strikes they have been fed during the war was untrue."

He addressed Local 1874 members at Textile hall, and told them that veterans are not interested in "the super-seniority of 190-A."

Explaining this, Barkan said, Gen. Lewis Hershey interpreted the Selective Service act so that it gives veterans the right to replace any non-veteran regardless of the non-veterans' seniority.

Advocates 60,000,000 Jobs
The question of jobs for veterans will "best be met by a program of 60,000,000 jobs where all can be employed," Barkan asserted.

He said Hershey's interpretation of the Selective Service act restricting re-employment rights to just those veterans who left permanently jobs would cover only twenty percent of the 12,000,000 veterans.

On the other hand, Barkan called attention to a model agreement recently adopted by the CIO, AF of L and the Veterans of Foreign Wars in which it was agreed by all parties that veterans who left jobs would receive seniority for the time they spent in service and veterans newly employed in a plant would also receive seniority for the time they spent in service.

Philip Murray, president of the CIO, recommended that CIO unions sign supplemental agreements with management incorporating these principles, Barkan said.

Recurrent Protection
He added that "this would cover seniority protection for veterans permanently" where Selective Service "only covers re-employment rights for one year."

As part of the work unions are doing to protect veterans, Barkan singled out the Johnson and Johnson firm, New Brunswick, N. J., and said the textile workers and map makers there conducted a survey to ascertain the number of jobs in the plant that could be handled by disabled veterans. Three hundred were found, he stated.

An agreement was worked out, Barkan continued, so that a non-veteran in a job would be up-graded, and no one would suffer as a result of making way for disabled veterans who would be covered by a contract guaranteeing them the going rate while they are being trained for the job.

Urges Community Service
Barkan urged the union to participate in community services to a much greater extent than was done in the prewar period.

The union's obligation, to represent the interests of the worker, "does not end with the worker leaving the factory gate," Barkan said.

He added that the union must represent the worker in relation to his community to see that he is properly housed, his children are properly schooled and that health, recreation and welfare facilities in the community cover the needs of the citizenry.

"We have learned that your city has undergone a similar change a few years ago. If it is possible for you to state that your population has found a great benefit in such a change, a letter from you to that effect, stating the different advantages that you have obtained, would be of a great weight before our transportation board."

In closing, Caron said, "If you had the kindness of sending me your answer before the end of the month, because the case will be heard early in November, this would be highly appreciated by the above-mentioned company and by the city of Hull."

Mayor Post said he will reply to Caron's appeal within a few days, adding that he will point out in his letter that Cumberland's switch from street cars to buses about twenty years ago eliminated noise and many danger hazards, and that the change provided better service to outlying districts.

The mayor said he understands electricity is considerably less expensive than gasoline in Canada, and that street car lines, or "trams," are more prevalent in Canadian cities than bus lines.

Broadwater Is Paroled by Court For Three Years

Must Pay $450 Funeral Expenses in Connection with Youth's Death

John A. Broadwater, 23, Moscow, convicted last Wednesday by a circuit court jury of manslaughter, yesterday was paroled for three years by Chief Judge William A. Huster.

Broadwater was charged with the death of Glenn Frederick Mowbray, 16, Moscow, who was shot and killed while hunting September 15 on Jackson mountain, near Moscow.

Judge Huster ordered Broadwater to support his family, refrain from using intoxicants and to be of good behavior. He further ordered that Broadwater should pay the sum of $450 in $20 a month installments, to Mrs. Mary Ellen Lancaster, the grandmother of the 16-year-old victim.

Judge Huster told Broadwater that this sum would be regarded as funeral expenses. The court stated that the monthly payments shall be made to Hugh A. Hotchkiss, probation officer. Mrs. Lancaster called on Broadwater in his cell at the county jail Tuesday, Sheriff David Steele reported.

When brought to the court room yesterday at 2 p. m., Judge Huster told the young man that he had been tried by a jury and "rightfully convicted." The court said it did not feel that it would add to the public welfare to send him to prison since the public would probably have to take care of his family, including two small children.

Questioned regarding his prospects in the event he was paroled, Broadwater told the court that he had earned $528 a day at the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company and that he understood that he could have his old job back.
